MACDONALD.

The death of Mr. Gilbert Woodcock occurred on Friday, March 28, at 5 a. m.
 He had not been well for a few days but death came to him very suddenly. He was the victim of asthma. The funeral, which took place on Monday, was very large considering the bad roads and the snow storm, and gave evidence of the esteem and respect in which the deceased was held by his friends. The service was conducted by Rev. H. I. Allen, whose text was Psalm 23, verse 4, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil." The remains were placed in the vault of the Napane cemetery.
 The snow is going rapidly and the roads are in bad shape.

Many farmers have tapped their trees and are making syrup and sugar.
 Mr. Joseph Clarke's youngest daughter sprained her ankle jumping out of a sleigh, but she is doing well.

BATH.

April 2nd.—The roads from here to Kingston are very bad and on Saturday the stage was five hours on the way.
 Mr. Lewis is laid up from having run a nasty fall in his foot.

 having passed his examinations at the Ontario Veterinary College is spending a few days at home before leaving for his boat.
 Mr. Balcock, of Odessa, waited on the Council on Monday night, asking for a bonus of $500 to build a saw and grist mill here.
 If the money is forthcoming he agrees to put up a mill valued at $4000.

A young deer that has been hovering near the village for the past few days was run down by Chas. Laird's dog on Saturday; it only lived a few hours after being caught.
 Sheriff Payton told continuing very low and not much hopes are entertained of his recovery.

 drawer, has lost the contract this year, and all regret it.

Capt. D. Griffith, our much esteemed Rev. of South Frederickburg, has been quite ill with a severe cold and lame back but we are pleased to hear that he is much improved.
 Mr. George Wager has been busy drawing his prepaid hay to Napane for the last few days.

BOYS' GOOD FANTS.

The Oak Hall has them and lots of them too. We have in stock to-day over one thousand pairs. For the little boy of 4-5 and 6 years of age you can get a pair of pants for 25c. We won't be "just sold out" when you come after them. We not only have a large stock of these goods but an unusually well selected stock. I don't pay you mothers to make boys' pants.

MARYSVILLE.

We are grieved to have to chronicle the sad news of the sudden death of Mrs. Thos.
 Deacy, an old and esteemed resident of our village. She was taken suddenly ill on Wednesday while dining, and on Friday evening passed peacefully away in spite of the united efforts of physical and kind friends. She is survived by her husband, one son and four daughters, who have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood in their bereavement.

Rev. Father Macloy, of Belleville, the former pastor of St. Mary's attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Deacy, on Sunday.
 On Wednesday last, Miss Frisella, Miss Minnie and Master James Lafferty, of Stirling, left here for Wyoming where they intend to remain some time.
 What makes one of our young men look so lonesome this last week? Some near death must be "worse than dead."
 Miss Libbie Dryden was the guest of Miss Mabel Ryan on Sunday last.
 La Grippe has visited this section again and our school was closed last week.

CARMANVILLE.

March 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Scanlin, of Enterprise, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs.
 D. McKeown.

 with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bell have returned to Tamworth.

John Reid who has been suffering from an attack of grippe, is able to be around again.

We heartily sympathize with one of our young men for having had to take a long drive coming home from a social, not long since. It was not the fault of snow so much as of water.

Miss Mary Evans spent Sunday with Miss Tat Dillon.

The buzz of the saw mill is heard now,
 early in the morning and late in the evening.
 Mr. Reid is very busy having an unusually large number of logs to saw this spring.

Master Corrie Cummings is ill with malaria fever.

Miss Rose Storey is visiting friends in Kingston.

S. is a first class captain but it takes F. to do the planning.

TYBENDINAG RESERVE.

Executive Chief J. B. Biant has leased his farm for a term of years. The lessee is going to turn his attention to market gardening.

The wife of Chief S. Loft, who has been suffering from a sore leg, had it amputated below the knee by the skillful hand of Dr. Newton on the 29th of March. She is doing well and likely to make a speedy recovery.

The Easter offerings of the Parish will be in aid of St. Stanislaus of the Diocese. It is expected that the response to the appeal will be liberal.

A young man of Deseronto who frequently attends services at Christ church presented a handsome prayer book for use on the altar.

Two of the teachers on the Reserve did not put in an appearance at the Inspector's township convention on the 22nd of March.

The measles are prevalent on the Reserve.
 Mr. M. Jack has been very busy overhauling his accounts at the advanced age of 80.
 It is now completed and the genial Robert is ready for the rush.

CONWAY.

Mr. Thomas Thompson died at the residence of his nephew, Mr. Wm. T. Clark on Saturday night, at the advanced age of twenty four years. His remains were placed in the Allison vault on Monday.

Mr. Conrad Sills is confined to his bed with lung trouble but we trust that under the skillful treatment of Dr. Northmore she will soon be around again.

Mr. T. Stinson, of Stella, paid Conway a flying visit last week.

The Workmen did not open their lodge
 Monday night as their attendance was rather small.

Mr. Jas. Hill, Jr., has come to Centerville to take charge of his cheese factory out there.
 The farmers in this vicinity have started to make sugar but find the weather rather unfavorable yet.

Mr. W. H. McDonald reports business rather dull at present. Monday he said it now we are expecting warmer weather and to go into sugar making, everyone expects to go into something.

The roads to put it mildly, are of the worst kind, scarcely able to go anywhere.

On Monday the funeral cortege taking the late Gilbert Woodcock, who died after a short illness, to the vault at Napane passed this place.

On Monday, Mr. S. Barnhart, of Hay Bay, had a stroke of apoplexy, but we hear he is improving.

On Tuesday two officers from Napane passed through here with a man taking him to town, a free ride.

A few days ago we were startled in this vicinity by hearing the cry of our people living at the East End Hall, Belleville, and the language used by some people of the West End which was likely to cause a great deal of bitterness between the parties, but by referring to his worship at Napane he made it all plain as daylight to all concerned. Charged a nominal fine he used in his dictionary.

The P. M. says he was in a terrible fix last week as the result of THE TRIBUNE getting delayed or missed somehow, did he arrive by the mail; parties that take their pleasure cannot be properly without it. He says he hopes it will not again occur.

Visitors: Miss Mary Lann and Mr. Solmes, of Napane; Mrs. Alfred Howe, of Richmond, and Mr. George Howell and Miss Howell, also Mr. Benson Moore, of Napane, at Miss Ella Mellow's.

ODESSA.

Another winter has put in its appearance,
 but we hope however it will not last long.
 Mr. F. Barrows, L. P. S., paid his official visit to our school on Friday and reported everything in good shape.

Sunday was a gala day in our Sabbath school which we observe has about three anniversaries during the year. On Monday evening the entertainment given by the children was quite successful, the children all doing their part nicely. We would particularly mention Miss Pearl Hogle who gave a solo entitled "Yes, I'll Be Your Sweetheart" in grand style. Although young, Pearl did well.
 She has a clear sweet voice and with proper care and training she is sure to make her mark as a singer.

A number of our young people attended the concert in Newburgh on Friday night.
 Mr. C. H. Finkle, of Newburgh, passed through our village on Friday en route for Kingston.

Mr. Woodruff, of Sydenham, who has lately taken possession of our grist mill is so busy that he has to run night and day.

It is reported that one of our bellies is to marry one of Yaker's business men.

John W. Warch, who has bought out Shiner's barber shop and takes possession on Friday.

 S. on Saturday last. The subject for the evening was, "Whether Party Government had proved itself more beneficial to a country than a Coalition government. The Songs were well rendered by Messrs Daggett and Moon and Misses Purdy and Winter.

Mr. Sharp is about to move into the house now occupied by Mr. Walker, who intends returning to his farm at Murvale.

 other is that of Mrs. Gibbon, of Murray.

 has secured employment.

 McDonald farm this week.

 now we are expecting warmer weather and

SOME GREAT DIAMONDS.

ONE WEIGHING 971 CARATS PRESENTED TO THE POPE.

It is the Largest in the World—Historic of Many Other Great ones Which Are Now Found in the Same Places—Romance of the Koh-i-noor—The Star of Africa—The Emperor's Sapphire.

A royal gift has lately come to the Pope of Rome. It is a diamond the like of which has never been seen in the whole world, unless the story of the Braganza diamond was true. That diamond it was said, weighed in the rough 1880 carats. The loss in cutting generally comes to one-half or a little less than two-thirds. This would make the gem weigh about 640 carats when cut. The stone was said to be worth $3,000,000 sterling or $15,000,000. What became of the Braganza is not known. It is probably now famous after successive cuttings and various owners under a name which has no association with the original finder.

Very little is yet known of the immense diamond just presented to the Pope. The meagre cable despatches from Rome say that it was found by an African chief in the mines at Jagersfontein, and it is said to be the largest known, weighing in the rough 971 carats. It came into the possession of the President of the Transvaal Republic, who sent it to the Pope. It is described as being of a bluish white cast and practically perfect, the only blemish being a tiny spot, invisible to the naked eye.

What the value of the stone is can hardly be estimated. When cut the weight of the stone will be about 460 carats. If perfect, it should be worth the gigantic sum of $20,000,000. Large South African diamonds have not the same value as the Brazilian stones have. An eighty-carat gem is a common find in the African mines, but most of the large stones discovered there are yellow in color, and therefore of little value. Still, from its gigantic size, the Pope's diamond will at once take a foremost place among the great gems of the world, and two thousand miles away from Rome it will probably be talked and written about just as the Koh-i-noor is to-day.

A $28,000,000 SPARKLER.

The most valuable cut in the world is the King of Portugal's Brazil diamond, which weighs 252 carats in weight. It is genuine, the magnificent sum of $28,000,000.

The Koh-i-noor or mountain of light, owned by Queen Victoria, is worth $3,500,000. This brilliant stone was cut from a Hindoo tract it took to the time of the god Krishna. It was certainly in the treasury of Delhi when the British were in the conquest of that city by Ala-ud-Din. From him it came into the possession of the Sultan Baber, of the Mogul dynasty, in 1526. This prince afterwards gave it to his son, in which it would take to maintain the whole world for a single day. The jewel was sent by Tamerlane among the jewels of Aurore, but it had been previously deposited in the collection of Hortense Borgia from 783 carats to 186, the weight it possessed at the Paris Exhibition of 1855.

The Emperor Aurore gave not only refused to pay Borgia for the cutting, so incensed was he at the great loss, but he continued all of his property and was with great difficulty prevented from cutting off his head.

Nadir Shah, the conqueror of India, possessed himself of the stone by a trick; it then passed from him to his descendant into the possession of Achmed Shah, whose son, Shah Sujah, was afterwards killed. He gave the prize to Runjeet Singh. After the capture of Lahore, at the time of the Sikh mutiny, it fell into the hands of the British troops, who presented it to Queen Victoria in 1850.

The brilliant had an irregular form, with several hollows at the base and on the sides, and there were several fissures on the surface. After great discussion among scientists the stone was intrusted to Mr. Costen, of America, and he cut it into a brilliant, fire-crystal, it is now a matchless, fire-flashing brilliant weighing 10-116 carats, and forms a valuable part of the crown jewels of England.

THE STAR OF ROM.

One of the diamond wonders of the world is the Orloff, which is set in the scepter of the Czar of Russia. It weighs 194 carats. Like the Koh-i-noor it has the under side flat and is cut by the diamond is supposed to have formed one of the eyes of an idol in a Brahmin temple. It is also said to have been cut by a peacock throne of Nadir Shah. Be its origin what it may, it is certain that it was stolen by a Frenchman, who sold it in Malabar for $250,000. It was purchased by the Armenian Schaffra, who, in turn, sold it in the year 1774 to the Empress Catherine II. of Russia for 450,000 rubles. It is worth 20,000 rubles and a patent of nobility. Another beautiful diamond belonging among the Russian crown jewels is the Orloff, which weighs 80 carats and is absolutely perfect, a mass of fire and brilliancy. It was presented to the Emperor of Russia by Catherine, the wife of Alexander.

Among the other famous diamonds is the Regent of Persia diamond, which forms part of the French crown jewels. Its weight is 1362 carats, and its estimated worth to-day is $1,000,000. It was bought by the Duke of Orleans, then Regent of France, of the Governor of Persia, for 2,000,000 francs, in 1717, for $1,365,000. In the rough the stone weighed 410 carats and the cutting cost $2,000. It is supposed to be a duplicate of the one which was cut in Golconda of the same name, a Hindoo merchant. This diamond was stolen from the Garde Meuble in 1792. It was mysteriously restored. Its last cutting occupied two years and cost $50,000.

The Emperor Napoleon I. had it set in the hilt of his sword of state, and it was captured by the Prussians at Waterloo. This wonderful stone was shown at the French Exhibition in 1855.

EMPEROR'S SUPPER STONE.

The Emperor Koenig has a superlative, absolutely perfect, which weighs 535 carats. It is set in a pendant, and was purchased for her by Napoleon III. The Florentine belongs to the Emperor of Austria; it weighs 1391 carats and is worth $500,000. It is set in a diamond collar and is rather thickly covered with facets like a rose diamond. In shape it is pointed top and bottom.

The noted Sancy diamond is almost shapeless; it weighs 554 carats; it was found on the body of the Duke of Burgundy in 1570 and was bought by the King of Portugal. After many changes it finally came to a James II. of England, who sold it to Louis XIV. for $250,000. It disappeared, with many other valuable things, in the dark days of the Revolution, and some years later became the property of the property of Prince Paul Bonaparte.

After the battle of Culcuth the city of London purchased a magnificent diamond at a cost of $7,000 and presented it to the Duke of Cumberland; it was known as the Cumberland diamond; its weight is 32 carats. It was one of the jewels of the crown, and it was restored to the claimant by Queen Victoria.

Yellow diamonds are not very common and so are those with a pinkish cast, but there is only one real red diamond—the rich, deep red of the "Pigeon's Blood." It is owned by the Duke of Devonshire, and if it could be purchased it would be added to the regalia of England. Every one is familiar with the perfect blue diamond known as the Hope diamond; it is owned by Mr. Hope, and cannot be purchased.

JAPAN PAYS CHEERFULLY.

The People do Not Object to Paying Money for War.

A despatch from Tokio says:—The temper of the Japanese nation has been significantly displayed in connection with the prosecution of the war. The original war budget passed unanimously by the Diet in its extraordinary session last October amounted to 150,000,000 yen. Two months ago it had already been made. A further issue of 44,000,000 yen has to be made and the nation may at any moment find itself paying into the Treasury about twenty million yen monthly. The strain does not appear to be felt as yet, partly because a large proportion of the expenditures is made with the country, and partly because the banks have co-operated earnestly and willingly to avert public inconvenience. Recently when the peace envoys arrived in Hiroshima, the House of Representatives unanimously passed a resolution declaring their belief that the end of the war was still remote and that they were prepared to grant needed to prosecute the campaign. The war budget submitted to the Diet for four days ago a supplementary war budget amounting to 100,000,000 yen. Without question or discussion the budget was passed by the Diet. The committee charged with the duty of examining and reporting upon all such measures. Two days later the committee presented its report. It cordially stated that it acquiesced in the Government's resolve to conduct the war so earnestly and vigorously as to secure lasting peace for the Orient, and that, consequently, there could be no question about the advisability of granting the appropriation required. When the president called for a show of hands every member rose in his place and the budget was passed unanimously and a storm of cheers. In the upper House the procedure was identical. There was no peace party in Japan.

ANY SUM OF MONEY

THE EXCESSES COMMITTED

by Japanese troops at Port Arthur caused the Japanese more than they pained Europeans. No steps were taken to punish the soldiers or degrade the generals. Such things cannot be done in time of battle, the only practicable way of ensuring the world was to show that the same soldiers could control the passion of revenge under the same provocation. Wei-Hai-Wei offered the necessary opportunity. In Shan Tung, as in the Lao-Tung peninsula, the Chinese behaved with pitiless savagery. Thereafter they caught Japanese they tortured and mutilated them. One Chinese soldier surprised a party of 30 Japanese soldiers cooking their midday meal, 300 Chinese men and women retained signs of life after a severe struggle, and tore from their bodies everything that could be torn. A few hours later the main body of the division was in the city and the unfortunate were longed, mangled by and saw the terribly disfigured corpses, but there was no attempt at retaliation. Not a single instance of cruelty or needless slaughter is recorded against the Japanese. On the contrary, we hear of common soldiers treating Europeans with the respect of a captain, and carried a baby in his arms through the thick of a combat. What is more, the principles of civilized nations in warfare are being taught to the Japanese and told the whole East, owing to Japanese examples.

British Sailor Shot.

A despatch from Baltimore says:—The British steamer Laurens arrived here on Wednesday afternoon from Santiago de Cuba. Two crew members of the ship, the killing of John Lowe, one of their number, as reported by the crew of the ship, was the subject of a court-martial. The court-martial was held on the ship, and the crew of the ship, who belonged to Leeds, England, in company with other sailors, were ashore on the night of the 10th and returned after midnight. Lowe was intoxicated, picked up a negro comrade on the dock and started to return to the town. Near the city is the Spanish Fort. All who pass there, night or day, must give the countersign or account for their presence. In his mad condition Lowe attempted to pass without countersign. The report of a shot rang out on the night air and Lowe fell dead, shot through the heart. The negro tattered and fell with a wound in his left hip, but recovering, begged for his life. He was recognized and allowed to return to town. Lowe's body was taken to the fort, and, it is supposed, buried by the Spanish authorities, who refused to give it up when called upon by Captain Gage. The negro joined the Laurens and told his tale. The crew, composed entirely of Englishmen, were angered over the affair, and denounced the Spaniards for such treachery and merciless action, saying that two good soldiers could have arrested the men without trouble, and that the murder was as fully justifiable. The Laurens sailed two days later, the British Consul having been made aware of all the facts in the case. The shooting occurred on the night of the 10th, while the ship was en route between Spain and Great Britain.

Before semaphore signaling came into vogue on the night of the 10th, the station house signified "stop," while its absence indicated the line was clear.

AGRICULTURAL.

Importance of Seed Wheat.

The familiar adage "like begets like" is the expression of a law of life, which is just as true of the plant as of the animal. Another law which is practically as far reaching is expressed by the phrase "influence of environment." In order to succeed in the production of animals of superior merit, it is necessary both to have good blood (that is, good ancestors) and a proper environment, that is, good conditions. It is equally important in the production of the wheat crop to have good seed, and supply favorable conditions for its development. While this statement is true in general, it is especially true in view of the low price of wheat. If we are to continue growing wheat, we must do it profit. In order to realize a profit, we must scrutinize every detail of business, rigidly apply the most successful methods, and take advantage of every favorable condition. Attention is therefore called to the importance of having good seed of an approved variety free from the germs of disease.

The seed should be sound, plump, heavy and of strong vitality. To this end, the wheat from which the seed is to be obtained should be allowed to become fully ripe, and should not be subject to prolonged drenches which will cause mold in the sheath, and heating of the seed. The wheat kernel is a young plantlet with a store of plant food packed closely about it to give it a start in life. Therefore, the larger and more compact the seed, the greater the food supply, which will result in more vigorous germination and growth.

The common practice of passing wheat for seed through the fanning mill is a good one, but it should be repeated if necessary with a strong blast to screen and blow out all small, light, and shrunk kernels, leaving only plump seed for sowing.

Necessary to treat the seed when for "bunt" as described below, the lighter kernels may be skimmed off, which will further improve the quality of the seed. If the crop from which the seed wheat is obtained contains any "bunt" or stinking smut, it should be treated after screening with "blue stone" or hot water to destroy the germs. We prefer the hot water treatment which tends to reinforce the germinating power of the seeds, whereas the blue stone treatment tends to retard the germination and reduce the yield of the crop. In order to treat the seed most effectively, the wheat is put through the fanning mill and heat to 130 to 155 degrees Fahrenheit. Place the seed in an open bucket, lined with coarse material like gunny sack. Set the bucket containing the wheat in one of the kettles, allowing it to remain one minute to become warm through. Then lift out the bucket letting the water drain back into the kettle for a few moments, then place in the other kettle allowing it to remain five minutes. The wheat should be screened after this treatment to secure the thorough heating of every kernel, which is the means of destroying the smut germs. All light kernels should be rejected and used for feed. At the end of five minutes remove the wheat from the water and spread it thinly upon a floor or canvas in the open air, so as to dry it before it is sown. It is then ready for sowing, but not to be sown immediately, it should be placed in a clean, clean sack to prevent contact with the germs of bunt.

There is no best variety for all soils. But there is a best variety, all things considered, for almost every soil and climatic condition. It is the variety which is best adapted to the soil and climate in a particular locality. This should be determined by trial, and when a variety is adapted to the soil and climate it is secure give it generous treatment, sowing in a well prepared soil of suitable fertility, on rich some other crop than wheat was last year. Avoid crowding with smut germs, sow only prime seed of the same variety from year to year, and my word for it the wheat that is raised in this way will maintain its yield and good qualities as long as favorable conditions are maintained.

Warmth for Lambs.

Owing to the severity of the weather lambs, unless taken great care of, will succumb to the cold, or, at any rate, they will not make that growth and progress so essential to the well-being of the young. The following practice can be thoroughly recommended both from the experience of myself and others, says Alfred Mansell. Give each lamb daily one, two, or three teaspoonfuls (according to age) of cod-liver oil, mixed with a little chaff, in their corn; or, where the flock is a small one, or the lambs very young, the lards could be droned. As a rule, lambs in a very short time eat it greedily. The oil helps to keep up the heat of the body, and in the case of those destined to be sold as fat lambs it is an excellent food at all times. A cheap and easy method of giving warmth and shelter in the field is to place old treacle or sugar barrels with one end cut, or their sides in the field where the lambs are, having previously lined the barrels with some straw or chaff. Lambs will make great use of these shelters, and an intelligent shepherd walking round daily can easily turn the barrels so as to face the warm sun.

In a large lambing fold where lambs are coming thickly, and artificial warmth is required for weakly lambs, it is expedient to have two or three small barrels with hinged lids at hand. Some soft hay at the bottom of these gives great warmth, and will be means of saving many a lamb's life. Sheep are so essentially the sheet anchor of the farmer that every effort possible should be made to secure a good lambing season.

Feeding Milk.

There is hardly any doubt that with good management a better profit can be realized in feeding milk to thrifty growing pigs than to make into butter, take to the country stores and sell at the price usually received, at least during the greater part of the season, and at a considerable loss of time and labor. But in feeding milk to pigs to make the most of it, in nearly all cases it must be fed in connection with something else. From the time the pig is farrowed until it is ready to finish for market, milk can be made its entire food, and later on its principal food. The milk must at first be supplied by feeding the sow with good milk producing food, as soon as the pig learns to eat it can be fed milk and if the sow is fed sloppy (slops made up with milk the pig will learn to eat much earlier than if corn or grain of any kind is depended upon).

In nearly all cases the best way of feeding milk is in connection with other food, as it requires too large an amount of milk alone to make a pound of gain in a pig. But made into a slop with middlings and bran, oil-meal and bran, or corn meal and bran, it not only makes a healthy, but an economical food. But even then the lowest cost of growth will not be realized unless, in addition, good pasturage is provided. Give growing pigs the run of a good pasture—always best—when they are then feed a good milk slop night and morning, and a majority of cases the best growth at the lowest cost can be realized. And if this is done milk can be sold at a better price, fed in this way to vigorous, better pigs, than will be realized by making into butter at eight or ten cents a pound at the country store, and all of the labor of butter-making be avoided in addition. It is true that in a majority of cases the same milk and the same amount of labor spent in making poor butter will bring two or three times that much.

Hudson Bay Railway.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—The or der-in-Council sanctioning the arrangement between the Dominion Government and the Hudson Bay Railway Company has been passed. It provides for the loan of $2,000,000, which includes a sum representing a capitalization of the subsidy of $80,000 a year for twenty years, granted in 1891. An additional security the Government is to have first mortgage bonds of the road and to retain the land subsidy. The deal was put through during the late period of uncertainty as to whether the Government would face the election or meet Parliament. However, it is still stated that work will be commenced on the road within the next few weeks.

A CHANGE IN TONE.

THE STAND TAKEN BY DOCTORS ON THE KENT CASE BEGINNING TO WEAKEN.

Ottawa, April 1.—It is safe to say that the statement made under oath by Mr. G. H. Kent, of this city, with regard to his wonderful recovery from Bright's disease through the agency of Dodd's Kidney Pills, has definitely decided the question as to whether he owes his recovery to this valuable medicine, and has been accepted as a final settlement of the debate. While, however, there is now no objection raised to the statement, there is still a strong feeling in the city and neighborhood with regard to the cure, and those who at first combated the idea as incredible are now loud in their expressions of astonishment that what has been considered an incurable disease should succumb so quickly to a remedy, and in their praise of the remedy itself.

A CAUTION! A WARNING!

If, on blowing the nose in the morning, lumps and flakes are discharged colored with blood, especially on one side, loss of time in applying a remedy, the worst kind of kidney disease has become seated, the pills are sore and full of small ulcers, and if not soon cured will be hard to cure and eradicate. Long standing troubles and diseases are cured by Paine's Celery Compound when all other medical agencies fail in their work.

For kidney and liver troubles, it is the infallible remedy. Nervous debility, exhaustion, sleeplessness, and headaches are quickly swept away by the curing powers of Paine's Celery Compound.

This is the season when the sick, must of necessity, recuperate lost strength, and gain the healthfulness so necessary to make life pleasurable for the summer. All should bear in mind the fact that Paine's Celery Compound "makes people well."

The following letter from Mr. G. J. Smye, of Sheffield, Ont., speaks of a wondrous cure after all ordinary means had failed to do the work:

"It is with great pleasure that I testify to the value of your great medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. For nearly two years I suffered from indigestion, kidney and liver troubles. After trying several medicines that did not effect a cure, I decided to try your Compound. Before using it I was so low in health that I could not eat or sleep. I could not lie in bed owing to pain in my back. It was only by resting on elbows and knees I was enabled to obtain a slight degree of ease. Before I had fully taken one bottle of your medicine I began to improve. I have in all taken fourteen bottles with grand results. I am a farmer and am now working every day. Anyone may refer to me in regard to those statements or to any of my neighbors around Sheffield, where I am well known. I am a living witness to the worth of Paine's Celery Compound."

AN ANXIOUS MAN.

THE DISEASE DISAPPEARS IN THREE WEEKS BY THE USE OF D. D. D.—LETTERS FROM MANTONIA FULLY DESCRIBING IT.

DEAR SIR,—During the winter of 1892-93, I was covered with Pimples on the inside of my right leg between the knee and the ankle. At I never had any thing of the kind before I was anxious about it, and sought medical advice, but getting no relief from the doctor I sent a bottle of D. D. D. applying some of it to my leg as well as using it internally, and to my surprise the nasty disease, however it was, disappeared within three weeks, and I am thankful to say it has never re-appeared.

THE ORDER HAD A PROGRESSIVE AND SATISFACTORY YEAR IN 1894.

The annual report of the Grand Secretary, Independent Order of Oddfellows, for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1894, is most satisfactory, showing that the order, notwithstanding the prevailing depression in commercial business, is still enjoying increasing prosperity. The net increase in the membership for the year was 1,194, within a trifle of the best since 1879, and twelve subordinate lodges have been instituted, with every prospect of several further additions in near future, the total membership in good standing, being 21,602. During the year 3,000 brothers, 156 widows, and 27 children have received sick benefits and relief amounting to $79,555.14. The total amount paid for current expenses was $75,845.55, making total disbursements $155,400.69, the average cost per member for all purposes being $7.17. The total average receipts per member was $9.34—making total receipts $202,015.47. The funds of the order are as follows: General benefit fund, $764,064.45; widows and orphans' fund, $70,038; and contingent fund $17,866.55; total, $841,969. The Koshak branch also continues to prosper, having gained 730 members during the year, with increase of assets of $743.87.

Sick headache and Constipation are promptly cured by Burdock Pills. Easy to take, sure in effect.

THRIFTY MOTHERS CAN DRESS THEIR LITTLE ONES HANDSOMELY AND CHEAPLY.

Thrifty and economical mothers rarely buy new clothes for their children, yet the little ones are always well and handsomely dressed for school and church. This is the result of using Diamond Dyes, which make all the fashionable colors with but little work.

Suits for boys and little dresses and jackets for the girls that have faded and become discolored, are quickly transformed into new garments by the magical working of Diamond Dyes.

These wonderful package dyes cost but 10 cents per package; they are simple to use—indeed any child can use them and get a grand color. The colors produced by Diamond Dyes are fast and strong, and in many respects far superior to the colors used in large dyeing factories.

When buying dye for home use see that your dealer gives you "Diamond Dyes"; imitation and worthless dye will ruin your materials and garments.

ERNEST McGOVERN, OF WHITBY, ONT., GIVES AN ACCOUNT OF HIS EXPERIENCE—CURED OF PERMANENT DYSPESIA BY D. D. D.

WORST KIND OF DYSPESIA.

GENTLEMEN,—I write to inform you that for years I had been troubled with dyspepsia, and having tried every medicine which I had failed, I at last found relief and cure in Burdock Blood Bitters, of which I took a bottle. The result was most satisfactory. Although only a young lad I had been troubled with dyspepsia for four or five years, but I can say now that D. D. D. does its work faithfully in the worst kind of dyspepsia, and has proved itself the only cure for me.

"IF YOU SHOULD DIE TONIGHT"

Well, it would be your own fault, if it was consumption that took you off, and you refused to take Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, which has been pronounced by scientists to be a positive cure for that dread disease. If you have any lung trouble, if you are threatened with consumption, lose not an hour in obtaining a supply of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. It is the great blood maker, and blood is what is needed by the consumptive. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthener and blood maker, and cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Scrophulous and Lung affections. In Big Bottles, 50c, and $1, at W. G. Egger & W. J. Malley's.

to the ways of her household." Yes, Solomon is right; that's what the good housekeeper everywhere does, but particularly in Canada.

But her ways are not always old ways. In fact she has discarded many unsatisfactory old ways. For instance, to-day she is using the New Shortening, instead of lard. And this is in itself a reason why "she looketh well" in another sense, for she eats no lard to cause poor digestion and a worse complexion.

COTTLENE is much better than lard for all cooking purposes, as every one who has tried it declares. Have you tried it? For sale everywhere.

MUCH LIKE A MIRACLE.

A STATEMENT FROM A WELL-KNOWN BERLIN MERCHANT.

HOW HIS DAUGHTER WAS RESTORED FROM THE TERRORS OF ST. VITUS DANCE—HER CASE ONE OF THE WORST EVER KNOWN—HAS FULLY RECOVERED HER HEALTH.

The readers of the News have been made familiar with the virtue of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People through the articles appearing from time to time in these columns, and while the druggists say that in this vicinity have received undoubted benefit from their timely use, it is only recently that we have heard of a cure in Berlin of such importance as to take rank among the most remarkable yet published. There is hardly a man or woman in the town of Berlin, or the county of Waterloo, who does not know Mr. Martin Simpson, owner of marriage licenses and general merchant, King street. Anything said by Mr. Simpson will be implicitly relied upon. A day or two ago we had a talk with him in reference to his fourteen year old daughter Helen, who had for two years been a sufferer from St. Vitus dance. He tells us that it was the worst case he ever saw. She did not sleep for whole nights and was an intense sufferer. She was totally helpless and unable to be helped by her parents. The best medical attendance was had, but all to no avail. She kept getting worse and worse and finally, when in the paroxysms, commenced to froth at the mouth, and her parents believed she was going out of her mind. Though unable to walk about eight months she would in her spells have fits, making her jump high above her couch. While in this condition, the worst case ever seen in this place, Mr. Simpson, as a last resort, purchased some Pink Pills and gave them to his suffering and afflicted daughter. He assures us that in thirty hours she found some relief. In a week the "dances" were entirely stopped and she was able to sleep, and was rapidly regaining her former strength. Some months after the use of the Pink Pills was discontinued she again had a severe attack of St. Vitus dance, but the pills stopped it, and for the last eight months has been entirely free from the terrible malady from which no one who knew the circumstances, expected she would recover, and her parents, as may be expected, are warm in their praises of the wonderful remedy which worked such great good. These facts are known to all who are acquainted with the family and further comments are wholly unnecessary.

When such a case as this one can be had to the wonderful merits of Pink Pills, it is little wonder that they are the favorite remedy with all classes. They are an unfailing remedy for locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of a gripe, palpitation of the heart, neuralgia, constipation, all diseases depending on vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for irritable bladder, to females, suppression, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of any nature.

These pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company of Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N. Y., and sold in boxes (never in loose form) by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against unscrupulous imitations (the shape) at 50c a box, or six for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., at either address.

HORTICULTURE.

POPULAR CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

How to Propagate Them From Cuttings—Three Favorable Varieties Described.

It is well within the limits of possibility to produce flowers of the finest quality upon plants that are inserted in the soil as cuttings any time from December 15 to April 15. As a general rule, the greatest satisfaction is obtained from the cuttings planted in March give the best results. A place which can be kept close and at a temperature of about forty-five degrees, with the cuttings near the glass, and a moist and firm surface, such as sand or peat, on which to stand the pots, is just the right place.

Firm, healthy, short jointed shoots should be selected for cuttings. The cutting should be at least three inches in length and cut horizontally with a sharp knife just below a joint. The leaf at the base may be removed and the end of the cutting should be well drained, filled with a rather fine mixture of loam, leaf mold and sand in equal parts, with a thin layer of sand on the top. With a pointed stick, make a hole in the centre; insert the cutting about half its length; press the soil firmly about it, taking care that the stem is not crushed or injured during the operation. Having potted the

PRUNING OF TREES.

The Different Results Gained From Summer and Winter Pruning.

Amateur gardeners know very little of pruning, and in this line are not desirably. This, however, in his monthly, very truly says: "The unfortunate part of all attempts at this practice is that in pruning one must have some object before he starts, and that this object will vary continually not only on various trees, but with a tree itself—and it is impossible, therefore, to give practical lessons in detail without knowing the particular object one may have in view."

One may have fruit trees growing in a comparatively small space, and which, therefore, desire to keep them. With this object in view, a very special system of pruning would be necessary, and the object would be to keep growing branches nearer to the ground and not up in the air a long distance, where the trees would make large spreading limbs. In order to accomplish this one has to prune out during the summer months all the strong and vigorous growths at the apex of the plant, so that the sap in the sap into the branches near the ground, for in a state of nature the tendency of the tree is to go up, and to go up as rapidly as it can. The upper branches are therefore the strongest, and the lower branches are the weakest. To cut the strong ones out, therefore, carries the sap down to the lower branches.

It is on the same principle that we prune hedges. These we wish to keep low, and for this reason the plants are pruned in the summer time, the strong vigorous branches—the top of the hedges—being the ones cut out, and this throws the sap into the branches near the ground, thereby strengthening them and making them of equal growth with those at the apex, and this work has to be done during the growing season.

If the same kind of pruning were done in the winter time instead of the summer, the result would be that the next spring innumerable strong shoots would appear at the apex of the plant, and growing so strong they would absolutely draw the nourishment from the lower branches. The pruning has to be done in this case while the sap is in vigorous circulation, so that the channel may be turned into these lower branches. One might take up any number of questions of trees in detail—apple cherries, plums, grapes or whatever it may be—and the lesson is just the same for all of them: To keep trees full of sap, with abundance of good growing branches near the ground, cut out the strong shoots at the apex during the growing season.

Different Species of Oaks.

The oaks are all admired for the beauty of their foliage and their varied habits of growth. In modern gardening the de-desired quantity, water thoroughly, and then transfer to the frame or house prepared for their reception. Here they should be kept close and given light when dry until rooted, when air may be admitted gradually at all favorable times. American Gardeners, from which the foregoing is reproduced, discuss the Queen as the variety belonging to the Japanese incurving section. The color is pure white, and the bloom remains one of the most perfect of a chrysanthemum. The Vivian Morel is of European origin and ranks among the best of the red and pink varieties. Both in Europe and America it has been highly spoken of and has taken many premiums. The color is not exactly pink—rose striped with white while growing but correct description: "It is a large and elegant flower."

Ivory is a well known favorite, is one of the best for all purposes, but when grown as a specimen plant has few equals. It is rather a dwarf grower, but the habit of the plant is good. The color of the blooms is purest white.

An interesting feature in growing chrysanthemums from seed is the fact that if a hundred seeds of any given variety are sown, no matter where they be from a good or a poor variety, they will be a hundred distinct varieties when they come into bloom.

Leaf-Blight of Strawberries.

The Connecticut experiment station thus describes the leaf-blight of strawberries and treatment they would recommend:

This disease is characterized by the appearance of reddish areas on the upper surface of the leaves. Later these appear in the centre of these discolored areas gray or whitish spots, upon which in autumn and winter are developed several forms of the prodigious growth of the fungus which causes the discoloration of the leaf.

Annually removing the settings, and planting only in deep and thoroughly drained soil, the loss from blight will be very largely diminished. Removing and destroying all the old leaves after harvesting, followed by cultivation, and the application of a quick fertilizer, is a process which has produced good results.

A more simple method, which has been adopted with complete success by certain growers is as follows: As soon as the berries are picked, run a mowing machine over the bed, cutting all the leaves close above the ground. As soon as the leaves and old mulch are dry enough, set fire to them and burn the bed over. If necessary, loosen up the old mulch a little with a fork before burning and put on more where it is scanty, in order to secure as even a burn as possible. Unless a severe drought follows, the plants will put up a new, vigorous, and healthy growth; much as usual in the autumn. In a dry season this method will be of little value, but if the burning is followed by rain, the process has in all cases proved a complete cure for the "leaf-blight."

Curious Orchids.

The Stanhopea represent a singular family of orchids growing in tropical America from Brazil to Mexico. The flowers are large, and many are singularly marked. Not a few are quite sweet scented. The flowers hang down in directly opposite direction to the leaves. They are in their native habitat dependent upon the branches of the tree, and in garden cultivation need growing in a flat basket or in such a manner that the flower spike can pass through the moss, and the flower can hang down the support. This method of growing is natural to some other orchids, but in none is it so conspicuous as in the Stanhopea. These last baskets are filled with sphagnum moss and pieces of rough peat, and on no account should the Stanhopea be treated as other plants, by putting in flower pots, as the flower spike has a downward growth only.

Horticultural Notes.

Great extremes of cold and heat are injurious to apple trees.

One that will not winter, a winter means must have apple trees of a rugged nature.

The begonia likes the shade, a hint that those with shaded yards can profit by.

It is recommended that those who are growing on a small scale, to let the vines run over small trees or bushes. A great increase of fruit results.

An exchange thinks that the hedges should be other kinds of fence. The hedge is not growing in popularity. The average farmer votes them a nuisance.

THE ALABASTER INDUSTRY.

It Has Flourished in Italian Caves Since the Days of the Ancients.

Thirty-two miles to the south-east of Pisa, in the province of that name, a very remarkable and very ancient industry is carried on. We refer to the alabaster industry of which a full description from actual observation is given by Vico-Consal Carnalchini, of Leghorn, in a Foreign Office report just issued. Volterra, where the alabaster is found, enjoys a special distinction among places of the world which produce that commodity. The material, which is of five main varieties, is found in nodules, embedded in huge masses of limestone. At the end of each cavern whence it is extracted two or three men are to be seen working away with small T-shaped picks by the dim light of unprotected oil lamps of Etruscan pattern, which, by a singular tenacity of tradition, are still in use in the district. In one case the block of alabaster will be already well projecting from its bed of limestone, and the operator is carefully picking away all around it, in order to extricate the complete block. The larger the specimen the more valuable it is in proportion to its weight. In another, search is still being made for the alabaster, and the workman is vigorously beating down the wall of limestone until he lights upon the white mass of what looks like a block. He then picks away carefully, so as not to injure the prize. When there seems a likelihood of a large quantity of limestone having to be removed, blasting with gunpowder is resorted to.

The alabaster industry dates back to classic times. Great changes have taken place in it, however, within living memory. In former days there were three distinct classes of workmen engaged in the work of fashioning the raw material—the master artist, who owned a workshop and employed numerous workers, selling his products direct to the alabaster shops or "galleries"; the journeymen, and the travellers, who took orders for the goods and sold them as they went along, in all the countries of the world, civilized and uncivilized. Of these, two, the masterworker and the traveller, are extinct species. Nowadays three men, usually relatives, work together in informal partnership, one being a turner, another a modeller and the third a decorator, who carries such decorative adjuncts on the finished articles as fruit and flowers. Their gains are very small, and, indeed, travellers who put in at the port of Leghorn and have alabaster vessels, statuary and the like offered at almost absurdly low prices, refuse, as a rule, to believe that they can be made by hand.

One kind of alabaster is made by a process of dyeing, which is still a trade secret, into an excellent imitation of coral. For a time this has been on sale, but the trade is now threatened with extinction. It is suggested that the people of the East, who used to buy it largely, left off doing so as they were doubtful whether the sham article could properly be used in the religious ceremonies of their own faith. The alabaster workers have true artistic characteristics, but in their desire to turn out what they think will sell they neglect the fine models that are to be found in such profusion in the churches of Italy, and flood the market with cheap reproductions of a limited number of classical figures and with fish and modern dancing girls, coquettish diving girls, fantastically clad pifferari and impossibly spruce lazzaroni.—London Daily News.

Jealous of a Stage Lover.

Too much zeal in the discharge of his stage duties has led a jeune premier at a Paris preparatory theatre into a disagreeable, not to say painful adventure. The young actor was acting with a lady of his own rank in a new piece, and had to make a declaration of love. He held the mirror up to nature so to speak, in the matter that the young lady's intended husband, who was looking on from the stalls, flew into a towering passion and threatened for blood. When the performance was over, the young man possessed by the green-eyed monster waited at the stage door for the jeune premier and whacked vigorously at the actor's face with his cane. The player—bruised, bleeding and fearful—did not make any effort to retaliate blow for blow, but holding up a manuscript which contained his part in the play, remarked to his aggressor that he had done no more than follow the instructions of the author of the little love tragedy in which he had acted with the beautiful young lady. The affair ended there.—London Telegraph.

An African Chief's Umbrella.

Visitors to the Nelson Bazar and Exhibition lately had an opportunity of examining "Alumma's Umbrella," which was the centre of much attraction. It is a gigantic sunshade, the nine sections of which are made of silk, each of a different color, and is trimmed with two rows of rich gold lace. The whole is mounted on a staff of silver nine feet long. This gorgeous trophy was the principal personal property of Alumma, a West African chief, and was captured by British bluejackets in the autumn of last year at Brokoppo, the stronghold of Nana, Alumma's son. It reached the Admiralty a few days ago, having been sent home for preservation as a memento of the capture of the slave-trader's headquarters.—London Telegraph.

Scientific Potato Growing.

At one of the experimental agricultural colleges in Germany the remarkable yield of 43 tons of potatoes per acre has been obtained by treating the seed tubers with sulphate of ammonia. The tubers were sown on 24 hours in a solution of six pounds of sulphate, six pounds of sulphate of ammonia and 25 gallons of water, and afterwards allowed to stand and drain for a day, in order that their skins might well be planted them.—San Francisco Examiner.

POWER FROM NIAGARA.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE ELECTRIC PLANT AT THE FALLS.

What is Expected to be Accomplished in Furnishing Power to Distant Points—Description of One of the Big Dynamos—100,000 Horsepower Horse Power.

It is expected that the wheels of the great electric plant at Niagara Falls will soon be set in motion, and that what may be considered one of the greatest engineering works in the world shall have become an accomplished fact. The plans for carrying the power to Buffalo, eighteen miles distant, are complete. In a month or two factories may be in full operation; in a year Buffalo may be supplied and, "in two years," says Prof. George Forbes, "the company will be working the Canadian side of the Falls, and in ten years (shall we say?) the whole of the 100,000 horse power which can be supplied by the existing hydraulic works will be giving power to smokeless manufacturing towns."

One of the three big dynamos with which the Cataract General Electric Company proposes to distribute its power has already been placed in position, and the shafting and hydraulic connections are ready to be put in motion. The unique machine, which in many ways represents the height of electrical ingenuity, was constructed by the Westinghouse company at Pittsburgh. A description of one of the dynamos has been obtained by the Electrical Engineer, which in substance is as follows:

To a circular foundation is bolted a vertical cast-iron cylinder, provided with a flange on which are mounted the armature rests. The inner part of the cylinder is bored to the shape of an inverted cone, and serves as a bearing for another conical piece of cast iron, supporting the shaft bearings. The armature cone is made of thin, oxidized iron plates, held together by eight spiral steel bolts. In the outer edge of the plates are one hundred and eighty-seven rectangular holes to receive the armature winding.

The outer rotating field magnet consists of a wrought-steel ring, to which are bolted the twelve inwardly projecting massive cast-iron pole pieces. The ring constituting the field magnet is supported by a six-armed cast-steel spider keyed to a vertical axis. The field magnets act also as a fly-wheel. The shaft rests on two bearings supported by four arms projecting from the inner adjustable cast-iron cylinder. The bushings of the bearings are made of bronze provided with zig-zag grooves, in which oil constantly circulates. On the outer side of the bushing there are also grooves into which cold water may be pumped if required.

The armature conductors are rectangular copper bars 32 by 8 millimeters, and each of the 187 holes of the armature contains two of these bars, surrounded with mica. The upper and under sides of the armature are connected by means of a copper bar, riveted to the ends of the bars, and the ends of the bars are fastened to each pole piece. Continuous current for exciting the field magnets is obtained from a rotary transformer.

The current is conducted to the field coils by means of a pair of brushes and a commutator at the top of the shaft of the generator. At a speed of 230 revolutions a minute the machine produces two alternating currents, differing in phase 90 degrees from each other, each of 775 amperes and 2,320 volts pressure. The alternations are 50 per second. The height from base of belt plate to top of machine is nearly 13 feet.

R. H. Stevens' "Breches" Bible.

A well-preserved edition of the "Breches" Bible, published in 1586 by Christopher Barker, printer to Queen Elizabeth, is in the possession of R. H. Stevens, of No. 44 Clinton place, this city. The volume has come down through successive generations from his ancestors.

This celebrated translation of the Bible bears its name to the use of the word "breches" instead of the word "aprons" in the seventh verse of the third chapter of the Book of Genesis. The work is printed in old English black letter type, and is still in its ancient binding, with brass-bound corners. In addition to the Old and New Testament, with references and foot notes, it contains a calendar, printed in red and black, a complete prayer book summary, catechism, "two right profitable concordances," dated 1578, and all the Psalms set to music.

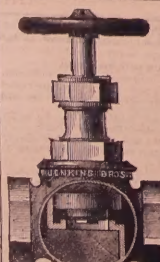

The music for the Psalms was composed by Thomas Sternhold and John Hopkins. The staff notation was printed in a primitive way. The "Solofay" system is referred to in an introduction to the Psalms as "a system intended for the more perfect reading and rendering of music."—New York Herald.

Shoes in Japan.

Japanese shoes vary for the use. Mud stiffs four inches high, keep them up in sloppy weather. Wooden clogs are ordinarily used, but big straw sandals, costing only a cent or so a pair, are used for walking or mountain climbing.—San Francisco Examiner.

Tea-Making in Japan.

In making tea in Japan the hostess pours powdered tea from the caddy and the water from the kettle simultaneously into a bamboo dipper, as a French waiter pours hot milk and coffee, and stirs it carefully with a "chawan" bamboo, one end of which is split into small shavings.

"I have none any," replied the young provincial; "shall probably take the first two soldiers I meet; anyone, in short I have no acquaintances in Paris to whom I can apply."

Three hours later the two principals and the "brosky," punctual to the minute, arrived at the spot fixed upon for the encounter.

"What!" exclaimed Roque, "have I chosen you?"

"He could not do otherwise," answered the other, "for he has just given him our names and address, he has just told me the name of the place where he would meet me else in Paris, he was only glad to avail himself of my services."

Roque's sense of humor—small as it was—was so irresistibly tickled by the absurdity of the situation that he laughed

"Consider, monsieur," urged Salty, "if you deprive us of so excellent customers as you are, what will be the result? A perfect treasure, who pays you out bargaining and before the goods delivered! These are hard times, Roque!"

"And we have so many debts on our heads," M. Roque, Staub added, in unattractive tones.

There was a parley. Roque was clearly perplexed. He stood a moment, thought, evidently wavering between passion and reason. Finally he gave over to the outwitted caller Edouard's words. "Monsieur," said he, with a courteous bow, "you are sharper witted than took you to be."

ST. MARK'S CHURCH NOTES.

The lecture given at the evening service on Wednesday last by the Rector of Napanee was a singularly clear, able and convincing presentation of the historical continuity of the Anglican Church, and her present position viewed especially in the light of those principles upon which the Reformation in England was conducted as contrasted with those which obtained the ascendancy in other parts of Europe. The earnest conviction of the lecturer as to the validity of the Church's position when tested by history was not more marked than the temperate and charitable manner in which they were so gracefully expressed.

The sermon on Sunday evening next is, D. V., to conclude the present Lent course. Subject—"The God-Eternal Life."

Next Sunday is the first day of Holy Week. It is often called Palm Sunday from the procession in commemoration of our Lord's triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

The appointed service for each day of Holy Week will be held each evening at 7 o'clock. The Good Friday services will be in past years at 10:30 a. m. and 3 p. m. It is the most solemn day in all the year.

The customary statement preparatory to Easter, which closes the congregation's financial year, is being prepared. The usual devotional statement will also be forwarded to each subscriber. By prompt response on the part of those in arrears and a generous contribution to the church alms, the annual report will be made more trustworthy. It can only be said how every body doing as "God hath blessed him."

OBITUARY.

MR. ARTHUR CALLAGHAN.

Mr. Arthur Callaghan, of Campbellford, foreman for about 20 years for the Husham Company, and a man of splendid physique, died after a few days' illness last week. He has been out in the Muskoka district on business, when he contracted a cold, which developed into pneumonia, and resulted in his death. He was 47 years of age, was the son of Thomas Callaghan, 5th con. He was a member of the C.M.B.A., who attended his funeral in a body. A large circle of friends mourn his sudden and unexpected removal.

MRS. THOMAS DEASY.

Mrs. Thomas Deasy, of Marysville, was stricken with apoplexy on Wednesday of last week, and, without reaching consciousness, she passed away on Friday, March 25th, aged 65 years. The deceased lady, who was most devotedly loved by her husband, was a large circle of friends in the district, was the youngest daughter of the late John Swenson, Esq., one of the first settlers on the Gravel road in Tyndinaga, and a very influential resident of the district. At his death she was left the old homestead, and a rather remarkable fact that she was born and married in the same house, in which she also lived until called away by death. She leaves a husband and six children and four daughters to mourn their dear bereavement. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon, and was a very impressive one. All the part of the district, about 30 rigs being in the procession. The bearers were Messrs. J. M. Hurley, of Thorow; Geo. Anderson, James Darcy, Patrick Fox and John McGuinness, of Marysville; and J. S. Meagher, of Deseronto. Religious services were conducted at St. Mary's Church, by Rev. Father Quinn. The venerable Father Mackey, of Belleville, was also present on the occasion.

CAPTAIN J. RYSON WOODCOCK.

Mr. Jacob Ryson Woodcock, of Deseronto who had been ill all winter from enlargement of the spleen, passed away at an early hour last Sunday morning after some days of intense suffering, which he bore with exemplary Christian fortitude. Deceased, who was in his prime, his age being 42, was the son of Mr. Henry Woodcock, of Kingston, in which township he was born, though the greater part of his life was spent in Deseronto. For many years he pursued the occupation of husbandry and filled the position of mate and captain on several lake and bay vessels. During the past two years he commanded the tug Kosciusko, belonging to the Rathbun Company. Deceased was a native of Deseronto, and was the son of a pioneer settler, Miss Mary Dowling, of Centerville, by whom and two children—a boy and girl—he is survived, and who, it is needless to state, have general sympathy in his death and bereavement. The funeral took place on Monday, and was under the direction of Deseronto Lodge, No. 102, I.O.O.F., of which deceased was a member, and a large turn out of Oddfellows and citizens. The bearers were Captains John Gowan, D. B. Christie, Chas. McAlister, Frank Harbath, James Heil, and John Stuart. After religious services conducted at the Methodist Church by Rev. R. Taylor, the remains were placed in the vault of the Deseronto cemetery, where the Oddfellows' ritual was observed. Rev. R. Taylor acting as chaplain, and G. A. Coie as G. M. J. K. Smith, of Dart & Coie, as organist, rendered appropriate services.

MRS. JOHN WELBANKS.

On Sunday, March 31st, Annie P., beloved wife of Mr. John Welbanks, passed away at her residence, Mill street, Deseronto, aged 42 years. She was the daughter of Mr. Daniel Hare, of this town, was a victim of that fell disease consumption. She was an exceedingly amiable lady and much loved by very many friends here and elsewhere. In her illness she was sustained by a simple faith in her Saviour. She was twenty-nine years of age and was an affectionate husband and one child to mourn their great loss. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon, the arrangements being directed by Mr. J. M. Smith. The following ladies of the S. B. C. of which the deceased lady was also a member were pall-bearers: Madam J. Hud, W. Hart, D. Brown, Sarah, and Misses: Misses: A. Brown and G. Lowry. About twenty other ladies of the class were in the procession. Arrived at the Methodist Church, the services were conducted by Rev. R. Taylor. MISS SMITH'S MILLINERY OPENING.

Miss Smith held her millinery opening on Saturday, March 30th, the event proving a conspicuous success. Crowds of visitors and customers thronged her rooms on St. George street, from early morning until late at night, all attested that they had never seen a more attractive display of millinery in Deseronto. Miss Smith and her staff of fair assistants were kept busy answering questions, describing styles, and taking orders, the number of the latter surpassing all their expectations. It would take a great deal of time and space to describe the different styles or to enumerate the many striking specimens of artistic millinery displayed. Suffice it to state that very large hats with the bell crown, bust, yellow and all shades of brown. Flowers are used in great abundance. Miss Smith, who is a thoroughly competent milliner, will gladly welcome visitors who may wish to call at any time to inspect her large assortment. She is a really successful business woman and has decided to mark prices very low to suit the times.

COVERED WITH PIMPLES.

AN ANXIOUS AN.

THE DISEASE DISAPPEARS IN THREE WEEKS BY THE USE OF D. B. B. LETTERS FROM MONTANA FULLY DESCRIBING IT.

DEAR SIR.—During the winter of 1892–93, I was covered with Pimples on the inside of my right leg between the knee and the ankle. As I never had any thing of the kind before I was anxious about it, and sought medical advice, but getting no relief from the doctor I tried a bottle of D. B. B., applying some to my leg as well as using it internally, and to my surprise the nasty disease, whatever it was, disappeared within three weeks, and I am thankful to say it has never re-appeared.

An Eminent Surgeon

Prescribes and Recommends Paine's Celery Compound.

He Declares it to be The Best Spring Medicine.

It Builds up Run-down Men and Women.

The Only Remedy that Makes Pure, Bright And red Blood.

Cleaning and purifying the blood, and putting the human organism in proper working order, is a work that demands very special attention in the spring season. Many of the ablest and most experienced physicians are of opinion that Paine's Celery Compound does the best and most thorough work in the way of blood cleaning, nerve strengthening and tissue building. No other medicine can impart to weak and run-down men and women the great vigour, strength, robustness and general good health that Paine's Celery Compound gives.

Dr. A. W. K. Newton, the eminent physician and surgeon of Boston, says:—

"Paine's Celery Compound is not a patent medicine, and it must not be confounded with the ordinary nervines, bitters and purgatives. It is much superior to them in formula and results as the diamond is superior to glass. It purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, and is nature's food for the brain."

"I had some trouble myself from blood poisoning, received in a very delicate surgical operation. The formula of Paine's Celery Compound led me to try it, and I was much pleased with the result. I prescribe it for men and women who have no appetite, lose sleep, and feel that life is a burden. For this condition and for disorders of the blood and nerves, it has no equal."

"When a man or woman has lost appetite, lost sleep, and feels that life is a burden, that person is in a serious condition. I prescribe Paine's Celery Compound for my patients who have these common and dangerous symptoms, with invariably satisfactory results. It is the best possible remedy to keep up one's strength and energy during the spring and summer months."

PROPERTY OF THE SIX NATIONS.

Judge Baker, of Fredonia, and Thomas Atkins, of Osida, were most representative of the Six Nations of Indians at Syracuse Friday, April 12th. The Indians were Friday a big tract of land in Kansas in 1838.

In 1838 the United States government secured the land for $1.40 an acre. The Indians succeeded in getting their claim of $2,000,000 allowed by the government and now they want to get the appropriation for the house and senate. The meeting next week is to argue the claim which Messrs. Jenkins and Baker make for 25 per cent extra for their services.—Oswego Times.

Naturally fair complexioned would be the rate rather than the exception, as unfortunately it is at present. If the ladies would wholly abandon cosmetics, and more generally keep the blood pure and vigorous by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the only reliable blood purifier.

As badness makes one look prematurely old, so a full head of hair gives to mature life the appearance of youth. To secure this and prevent the former, Ayer's Hair Vigor is confidently recommended. Both ladies and gentlemen prefer it to any other dressing.

WORST KIND OF DYSPEPSIA.

DEAR SIR.—I write to inform you that for years I had been troubled with Dyspepsia, and having tried other medicines which entirely failed, I at last found relief and cure in Burdock Blood Bitters, of which I took two bottles, the result being a perfect cure. I do not wish to fail in the worst kind of Dyspepsia, and has proved itself the only cure for me.

WHIPPING SEPARATOR CREAM.

As many of the readers of this paper are buying separator cream from the Rathbun Company farms we have been requested by the Farm Superintendent to reprint the following from the Country Gentleman of 1894, page 450, so that the many who may wish to temper their cream when intended for whipping and not lay the blame of their sometimes unsuccessful attempts where it does not belong. Without giving the details of all my experiments allow me to say that first I succeeded in whipping perfectly which I had been unable to do before.

As the farm sells no cream testing less than 25 per cent to its regular patrons the above information regarding temperature will give with their orders the use of the cream is intended for.

Gentlemen—About three or four weeks ago I had an attack of Rheumatism. I tried two or three different medicines recommended by druggists as "the best and only cure," etc., etc., but got no relief. About the time I was beginning to despair, reading my daily paper, with some slight misgivings I bought a box of your pills, which I am pleased to say gave me almost instant relief and permanent cure. I consider Dr. Orillia a God send.

For a man who may be said to have had one foot in the grave, and whose health is described in the accompanying remarkable picture of health and vigor, and pursued his work at the heavy press without any indication of weakness. He is loud in his praise of the remedy which cured him.

Searchlight For Wounded.

The Military Wochentblatt mentions an invention for finding the wounded on the battlefield. It consists of a telescopic tubular pole, about 25 yards long when fully extended, with a gas or kerosene or electric light at the top. It is made of aluminum and kept steady by three or four thin wire cords, a large white reflector being placed above the light. It is said to light up a large extent of ground most accurately and in a manner much more serviceable than that of an ordinary searchlight.

VACCINATION OF LAND.

Interesting Experiments Being Made in One of the strangest things in recent science has to do with the recent "vaccination" of land. Everyone knows that the fields, instead of improving, are a field to plant it occasionally with a leguminous crop, such as clover or lucerne, the roots of which have a power of absorbing and retaining more nitrogen than they take from the ground. But where the nitrogen comes from is another matter. The air suggested itself at once when people began to study the problem, and Messrs. Leves and Gilbert, among others, spent many months in fruitless endeavors to trace the source to the air, counting at last to a negative conclusion.

The discovery was eventually made by Herrich, Hollriegel and Willfarth, of Germany, that the absorption was due to minute organisms (a sort of diatoms) in the roots, which, when the supply of nitrogen in the soil began to fail, appeared in the form of small excrescences, drew nitrogen from the air and so caused the growth of the plants. A more convincing experiment was performed in Prussia, where a large field was sown with lupines, and divided, one part being treated in the ordinary fashion, the other inoculated from a soil lupin crop. The yield in the latter part was five and a half times as great as in that under the normal treatment. A remarkable result in the ordinary field, that each variety of the leguminous has its characteristic microbe, and that it is no use inoculating a field of clover, for instance, with lupine, or of lupine with clover.—Rochester Times.

Ladies Fear For Their Hair.

A dinner party in the suburbs one evening last week was brought to a summary ending by the entrance of a large sized bat into the room, which swooped down over the table, causing such a commotion of the fair sex, including the hostess, as an earthquake could scarcely have accomplished. The innocent cause of all this disturbance sought refuge in the upper folds of the window draperies, whence it was impossible to dislodge it, and as the ladies persistently refused to return to the dining room while the intruder held possession there the remaining courses were served informally in the library to the scornful amusement of the men. One of the latter is reported as saying, "And yet women consider themselves our equals and want to vote!"—Boston Saturday Gazette.

SOME GHOST STORIES.

A THEORY WHICH MAY FULLY EX-

PLAIN SOME OF THEM.

The Self-Hypnotism Puzzle—Several Cases

Minutely Explained, Showing the Possibility of the Mesmeric Power Lying Within One's Own Will Power.

The two following histories demonstrate the source from which many puzzling cases have their origin—cases of hysteria, in all its innumerable forms of hypochondria.

Case 1.—An ex-surgeon, a gentleman of education, culture and wealth, at the age of 60 became interested in Spiritualism, starting from curiosity, with a disposition to investigate. He read exhaustively the subject. During the first period of his study he visited many Spiritualists, and the conclusion he arrived at was that these people were frauds. Having satisfied himself of this, he pursued his studies alone. With much practice, he was at last able to perform mental concentration, which, as he explained, was the condition to arrive at, in which he could free his spiritual body and commune with the spiritual world. At one of these times, when practicing mental concentration, a body which had all the appearance of being material appeared before him.

It was the form of a woman in black. The conversation he carried on with her surprised him, as she was well versed as he on topics to which he had devoted much of his time. She also told him things which he knew, but which he himself could not know, yet he acknowledged that the spirit had told him nothing more than he already knew. From this time on he frequently conversed with the spirits of deceased friends and relatives. He said that he never used to see them in life, and their voices were identical. These spirits would disappear as they came into space. This man never used alcohol; he has used tobacco moderately, and would not allow anyone to use it. He was very interested in this subject; even his friends and family have been ignorant of the fact. He attends to his business as satisfactorily as ever, and has no semblance to one who is insane on one subject.

Case 2.—In 1892 a recent graduate in medicine made a wager with some of his associates that he could sleep in a room with a corpse. He had dissected a great deal; even at times he had worked alone at night in the dissecting room, had attended many autopsies, and had been associated considerably with the dead. Everything, though the clothing and driven into the table to make sure that it would not be removed. The young man was locked in the room with the understanding that he was to be called at 3 a.m. At that hour, when his friends arrived, they found the door open. He was taken home, where he did not improve, and at last he was taken to a private asylum. Among other therapeutic agents, hypnosis was used. In six months he returned home, cured.

The story of that night is as follows: On being left alone he had no fear of the corpse whatever, and went over to look at it, assuring himself that it was a corpse, and no joke had been attempted. He trod around the room and finally sat down at the foot of the bed. Now and then he glanced nonchalantly at the dead man. As time passed and he became tired, he noticed that he was glancing more frequently at the body. What had an hour previously not interested him, he now began to attract his attention considerably. Every minute he found himself looking at it, and as it became late and he grew more tired it absorbed his mind to the exclusion of everything else. He gradually became much annoyed, and wished he was home. He thought upon the subjects of life, death, the soul and spiritualism. To hide the corpse from view and cease thinking on these subjects, he determined to try sleep. He removed some of his clothing and pulled the blankets over his face. He heard noises, but as he was tired he reasoned that it was either the wind or the settling of the house. He, however, glanced at the corpse from time to time, and at last got into a position in bed to keep it in view. His eyes were terribly strained, and he had a frontal headache. His eyes were riveted upon the figure and he felt drowsy, but could not close them. The corpse at last rose in a sitting posture, then stood up and walked toward him. His eyes were open, and had a stary, glassy appearance. It spoke. After that he could remember no more until he was taken from the house; even then he could not remember the slightest recollection of, and even now that he is recovered he is positive that what occurred that night actually happened.—Pacific Medical Journal.

An Altruistic Barmid.

There will soon be quite a library of "blue books" dealing officially with the cause of women—some of the serious cases of women who have been born tollers and workers, and who actually have experienced the at times brutal tyranny of man. One of the most interesting, too bulky even to peruse, deals fully with the various conditions of labor under which women work, and which it is hoped legislation will ameliorate. A genuine tale of the good influence of a woman working in the midst of an untoward temptation is told not inappropriately here; it tells of a barmid in a seaport town where crews were frequently paid off, who made it her business to be as attractive and nice to the men as possible and then persuade them to fly from temptation and get home with their money to their wives.—Lady's Pictorial.

SAP'S A-RUNNING.

Fun and Hard Work in the Maple Bush in the Early Spring.

To get the best flow of sap, the nights must be freezing and the days warm and pleasant. When it reaches the camp the sap is poured into the big kettle and a pile of dry boughs is soon crackling away under it. After that, for several weeks the camp in the sugar bush is the scene of great activity and excitement. It is really a good deal of a picnic. In the evening the fires are set to roasting high around the kettle, and the boys near and tell stories. Sometimes the girls in the neighborhood come out in a body with a big basket of doughnuts and sandwiches, and then the boys "see them home."

After having been boiled partly down in the kettle the sap is dipped out into the pans and again boiled until it is thick and syrupy. Just before the time for "sugaring off" arrives the syrup is dipped out of the pans and placed in tubs, where the "sugar sand"—otherwise the malate of lime—can settle out. Then it is poured back into the last pan in the series and stirred until it boils. One of the boys stands over it with a spoon and from time to time he drops a little syrup into a snow bank, and if it hardens or "sugars" it is time to pour it off. Sometimes it is "sugared" in tubs and sometimes in bags of various sizes and shapes. In these forms the big brown blocks go to the market.

Toward the end of the sugar season the yearly "sugaring off" festival is held in many places, and it has come to rank with the husking bee and apple-paring party. Some pleasant April afternoons when the snow has been driven to the protection of the fence corners and the robins are hopping on the moist sod the people from all the country round gather at the "bush," bringing their lunches with them. Each boy and girl is provided with aspoon and a big white chip. When the syrup is thick and brown in the last pan a little of it is stirred with a spoon, and the boys and girls begin to jest and laugh and sing until it has "sugared" almost white. By this time the women of the party have laid out the bread and butter, the cold ham and the pickles—for pickles are always present at a sugar party. Then the men begin to continue until everything is eaten up.

Some big maples will yield as high as 30 gallons of sap daily, but the average is much below this amount. The sap has only about 2 per cent. of sugar in it, and the boiling, therefore, is for the purpose of driving off the water and leaving sugar. This is accomplished in some sugar bushes by means of a patent evaporator in which the process is much more rapid. Sometimes the sap is not boiled down to sugar, but is allowed to remain in the form of a syrup, weighing about ten pounds to the gallon.

The great element of success in sugar making is cleanliness. Much of the pure syrup and sugar on the market is believed to be adulterated, simply because the makers were not careful to keep leaves and twigs out of the sap, and neglected to clean out the kettle and pans frequently.

Maple sugar making is distinctly a Canuck industry. Practically maple sugar is made nowhere in the world outside of Canada and the United States, and we learned the process from the Indians. In many of the tribes sugar making was in times past one of the favorite pursuits. The first sap which flowed after the trees were hacked—for the Indians had no saws—was sacrificed by the medicine men to the Great Spirit. Then the braves built the fires and the women tapped the trees, chopped the dugouts and did all the rest of the work.

A large part of the country's supply of maple sugar comes from this province, where hundreds of farmers produce it. Trees are planted every year, so that a vigorous bush may always be maintained. Even the roadsides are lined with great maples, and in the sugar season these, too, are tapped. The taking of the sap from the trees in no way injures them. Canada used to send a considerable quantity to the United States.

It is a common impression that maple sugar is much adulterated, and to a certain extent this is true. Commercially maple syrup contains a large amount of ordinary granulated or "A" sugar. This variety is used largely in hotels or restaurants. A still cheaper grade is made by mixing a little maple sugar with a great deal of glucose. This is also called "maple flavors" on the market which are put into a glucose compound and the resulting syrup is palmed off on an unsuspecting public as "pure maple syrup." Maple dealers, however, do not countenance any such practices.

Maple sap is also used sometimes for making vinegar. By exposure to the sun for four days it becomes sour, and can hardly be told from the best vinegar.

Geraniums Disliked by Flies.

Here is an interesting idea for the housewife who is troubled with the annoying flies flourishing in their furnace-heated rooms long after cold weather is supposed to have destroyed them. The suggestion comes from abroad that the fragrant geranium—the old fashioned rose geranium—loved by our grandmothers—keeps flies away. A moderate sized geranium of this variety is said to be so disagreeable to flies that they avoid its neighborhood, and a two or three of these plants in a room will drive them out altogether.

Glory at Cost Price.

Marshal Lefevre, created Duke of Dantzig by Napoleon the First for his services in battle, was called upon one day by an ex-convict who had not been cowed in the work. He seemed very envious of his friend's riches and beautiful house and made unkind remarks about them to the marshal. "Well, now," said Lefevre at last, "you shall have it all, but at cost price." He will go down into the garden; if you will after you sixty times, and then, if you are not killed, everything shall be yours."

THE PRINCE OF ROMANY

SKETCH OF THE RICHEST NOMADIC

HORSEDEALER IN THE WORLD.

This Prince Loved All Things Gorgeous

He Travelled in Splendor and Dazzled

the Eyes of Countrymen With Whom He Traded Horses on the Square.

Prince Williams is dead—the prince of Romany, the richest nomadic horse-dealer in the world. He was an Englishman, and his word was as good as his bond—a strange quality, and which even a patriotic horse-dealer. During the American Civil War he was located in Buffalo, where he bought horses for the Government, and many times he ran over into Canada in pursuit of his business. During the first ten years of his residence in America the Prince travelled about altogether in the Southern States, where he was great favorite with the horse-men and plantation owners. During the last thirty years, however, his headquarters have been in East Hartford, Ct.

No one understood better the effect of gorgeous finery on the minds of the back country people than the Prince. He travelled he went about with pomp and pageantry. The country folk received him with open-eyed wonder and somewhat of the deference that is paid to a monarch. The Prince was by no means an ordinary everyday trader, but all his horses—there were always a score or more in his train—were sleek and blooded animals, the finest in the land, whose glossy coats shone with the polish of skilful grooming.

All day the business of horse-dickering went briskly on. At dusk the rural traders set off homeward with their purchases, and then the Prince and his attendants kindled their evening camp fires. Horses were tethered up and there among the forest trees, the glittering canvas wagons drawn up in a circle, and then the nomads partook of their supper. They slept in their wagons, in roomy chambers on wheels. They were fitted up in elegant and comfortable style.

Very orderly and proper, and neat withal, was the Prince's encampment always, for "the Chief," as his people fondly termed him, was rigorous and inexorable in respect of his temperance convictions, and would not tolerate disorder, intemperance or licentiousness.

Lavish as the Prince unquestionably was in his mode of living and travelling, dispensing hospitality with an open and prodigal hand, nevertheless his charitable heart was even more bountiful and uncalculating. His purse was always open to the needy applicant—it is said that a person in pecuniary distress never applied to him in vain—hence his memory is revered by many thousands of poor persons of the first of the land.

All his life the Prince travelled in great magnificence, with imposing equipage and harness gloriously bedecked. A few years ago he had a wonderful chariot constructed for himself that exceeded in its splendor anything of the kind ever produced. The wheels were made in turn by troops of haltered, high-stepping steeds, clattering over the stony country roads, kicking up clouds of dust. Prince Williams always rode ahead in royal style, in a sort of triumphal every-day procession, and he was no less than his rumbling chariot, was at once a wonder and a caution to the hard-fisted and penurious farmers, among whom he journeyed and sojourned.

He had that towering chariot, which was even bigger and grander than his own, and he rode in it with a queen and quakes in the circus procession, designed for him by an artist of his trade, who spent many a sleepless night concocting novel schemes to bedaub it with sunset splendor. It cost him not a dollar less than $5,000 or $6,000, and it was worth every penny of the sum, at that, for it fairly wallowed, the chariot did, in gleaming gold, silver, paint and trimmings.

Half a dozen beautiful horses drew it, an round and sleek and pompous as Percherons, and they stepped along a back country road, resplendent harness jingling with bells and silver buckles, flashing back the sun's rays in contemptuous mockery of Phobos Apollo's belittling glances, with a steady, plumes nodding and fluttering in the breeze.

All this gawdaw spread just delighted the Prince, and what was of vastly more account, it dazzled the country, lured the people, and heaped up enormous nothing else could do; for the Prince was a mighty shrewd and sagacious judge of the pecuniary side of a glittering business phenomenon.

So the Prince rode and glittered habitually for many a year, and all the time shining hard dollars of the realm rolled into his capacious coffers, his bank account waxed steadily more plethoric, and folks said: "H'm! the Prince is getting rich."

The Prince always chose an ideal spot for an encampment. The brilliantly painted and decorated wagons were quietly hidden in the woods, with groups of horses tethered beside the highway, all combining to form a romantic and bewitching scene. In the company were from 15 to 20 persons—men, women and children—and all in all they had 35 horses, and magnificent animals they were. The great chariot, of course, attracted most attention on the part of the awe-struck countrymen, for it is like a buffet parlor railroad car, equipped with all the necessities and luxuries demanded by the most fastidious travellers. Indeed, it is a perfect boudoir in wheels, with beds covered with spotless counterpane and hung with silken curtains and drapery. The camp trimmings and camp equipage were valued at more than $2,000; the persons there were all young and handsome, and the whole camp was as neat and pretty as that of an ideal picnic party.

Reducing Rates.
Sweeping reductions in the value of lake vessel property appear in the inland Lloyd's vessel register for 1893. At present vessels on the lakes are earning nothing, and the cost of building vessels has declined heavily owing to the industrial depression. For these reasons the value in the register had to be reduced. It would be unfair to permit owners to insure their properties in valuations five to twenty-five per cent. higher than the building prices of the same kind of property.

The alarm was given and neighbors rushed to subdue the flames which were making rapid headway. The furniture of Mrs. Bottling as well as Mr. Martin Reid, who occupied part of the house, was quickly removed. Fortunately there was a good supply of water on the premises and the fire brigade by active exertions extinguished the conflagration, though not before considerable damage was done to some rooms upstairs. The loss is covered by insurance. The fire engine was very slow indeed in getting out and did not arrive at Centre street tank until the fire was out, the house cart following some time after. There were general expressions of dissatisfaction at the slowness with which the brigade performed its duty.

THE BUSY MAN.

If you would get a favor done
By some obliging friend,
And want a promise, safe and sure,
In which you can depend,
Don't go to him who always has Much leisure time to plan,
But if you want your favor done,
Just ask the busy man.

The man with leisure never has
A moment he can spare,
He's always "putting off," until
His friends are in despair;
But his every waking hour
Is crowded full of work,
For the art of waiting time
He cannot stop to think.

So when you want a favor done,
And want it right away,
Go to the man who can only
Work thirty hours a day.
He'll find a moment, sure, somewhere,
That has no other use,
And fix you, while the idle man
Is framing an excuse.

National Anthem.
The words and music of "God Save the Queen," or, as it was at first, "God Save the King," were by Henry Carey. This anthem was first sung in public in honor of the victory of Portobello, on November 20, 1760.

"Hell dir im Siegerkranz" was adapted from the preceding and was proposed as a German hymn, in 1801, by Baltheard Gerhard Schumacher.

"Die Wacht am Rhein," written in 1841 by Karl Wilhelm, has since 1870 become the most popular German song.

The Austrian "God Save the King" was written in 1790. Haydn said the English and was very much impressed by the solemn strains of "God Save the King," and resolved to write a hymn which would compare favorably with it.

It was first performed by Emperor Francis I. on his birthday, February 18, 1879, and shortly after it was officially declared the national hymn.

The "Marsia Real" (Royal March) of the Italians, by G. Gabetti, is not an anthem in the sense as applied here, but a military march, which takes its place.

"Bozta, Csara Krail," the Russian national melody, was composed by Col. Alexei de Louche in 1881. This was played at the coronation of Nicholas II. in 1894.

Philosophy for the Bill Collector.
A collector of unpaid bills has a hard time of it, but one who visits a philosopher recently who convinced him of some astounding facts, says the Amusement Journal. The collector said that he was chasing the said philosopher's debtor for about six months and was getting tired. It was always "Come around to-morrow," or "I haven't got it this time."

"Say," he said, when he made his last trip, "are ever going to pay this bill?" "Why, yes, some day," the philosopher replied. "But I don't know when," he replied to show you a thing or two. How many bills have you in that pack?"

"About forty," said the collector. "How long does it take you to visit all these people?" the philosopher inquired. "About a day," he replied. "What if all paid up promptly?" "Why, that would be great."

"Would it? What would you do for a living if all these debtors paid up in one day?"

The collector looked blank for a moment. "Great Jerusalem! I'd be out of a job," he said. "Well, then, don't be so anxious to collect every penny due to your people. One bill a day is enough. As for the rest, come around some time next week and I may do something for you, and the philosopher faded away.

Dishes For Great Men.
Plus IX, during meals, his politeness, ate only an egg and a bit of bread for breakfast.

Meyster said that no man could work well who did not live well. He was a hearty eater.

Swift said: "No bread is so bitter as that of a dependent." He spoke from personal experience.

Locke said that the proper breakfast for a student man was a bit of fish and a piece of bread.

Cowley liked fried eels. He said that when properly cooked they were a dish to set before a king.

Michael Angelo, during the greater part of his life, lived on the plain food of an Italian peasant.

Rare Ben Jonson asked no better treat than a pork pie with an abundance of Canary wine.

Bernadotte, Napoleon's marshal, who afterwards became king of Sweden, liked geese and onions.

Walter Scott liked venison better than any other meat, and potatoes better than any other vegetable.

The Death of Nelson.
It may be of interest, in connection with the Nelson bazaar, to quote a passage from the memoirs of Robert Guillemaud, who was posted in the shrouds of the Redoubtable during the battle of Trafalgar. "Near the stern of the Victory was an officer covered with decorations and having only one arm. From what I had heard of Nelson I felt no doubt that it was he. He was surrounded by several officers, to whom he appeared to be making a speech. At the moment of my perceiving him several shots fell near him, struck by the shots from the Redoubtable. Receiving no orders to descend, but seeing myself forlorn in the middle of the battle, I thought myself bound to fire at the deck of the English vessel, which I saw unprotected, and very near me. I might even have aimed at the individuals, but I fired in succession on the different groups formed by the sailors and their officers. Suddenly I noticed a commotion on the Victory. People hurried round the officer whom I believed I had recognized as Nelson. He had fallen, and was being carried away wrapped in a cloak. His star at that moment showed me that I was not mistaken, but that it was really the English Admiral. A moment later the Victory ceased firing, the deck was deserted by all who had been stationed there, and I presumed that the consternation caused by the Admiral's fall was the cause of this sudden inactivity." Guillemaud, on learning that Nelson had died from a shot entering the shoulder and passing through the spine, was confirmed in the belief that in this, his first engagement, he had killed the dreaded English Admiral.—Paris Correspondence London Times.

LADY STANLEY OF ALDERLEY

A Woman of Unusual Personality and Success of Character.
The death of Lady Stanley of Alderley, practically from the wave of cold, but for which she might have reached her natural age of 80, removes a figure from the stage of London society of which there will not in the next generation be many replicas. There will be many grand ladies left, but altogether lacking the present character, which will probably not happen in any period worth considering; but they will not be like Lady Stanley.

She resembled the great Scotch ladies of the beginning of the century, of whom Mrs. Oliphant has drawn so charming and powerful a sketch in her picture of "Mrs. Catharine Douglas, who, protected alike by station, etiquette, and by charm, dared say precisely what arose in their minds; which was, nine times out of ten, the actual truth, expressed either epigrammatically or roughly, or caustically, according to the character of each interlocutor, but which was invariably made forcible by hard, clear sense. Always a liberal, always inquisitive, always eager for new ideas, inquired she could learn them from persons and not books, Lady Stanley of Alderley probably never believed a fad in her life, and never was carried away by an unsound idea. As independent as the most independent of the advanced school, utterly careless of many conventionalities, very brusque both in manner and talk, the impression she always left—if she had a chance of making herself felt—was one of some originality, and of a reserve force which could be used if necessity arose.

She was even singularly tolerant of opposition, at least outside her own doors, but people were shy of fighting her in committee—and she sat much on various committees—partly because she was sure to speak the exact truth without regard to persons or consequences, but partly also because of her remarkable business efficiency. She was as good a chairman as the ablest man, and better in this, that she would put up with wandering or the lapses or the foolish display with a trenchancy which, when men display it, always gains them personal foes. Lady Stanley did not make personal foes even among women who were not her friends, but by winning always "so rude." Possessed of such qualities, so well placed, and so interested in all the life around her, politics more especially, Lady Stanley exercised an influence which, when the world was a third of its present size, and people repeated over and over again the same old story of reading the evening newspapers, must have been very considerable.

The politicians who talked to her found what all men seek in able women, sense, which is not sensible, that is, which is not an intention, and, in fact, but a self-generated, and, so to speak, instinctive opinion, which may not serve as a guide, but is an invaluable contribution towards guidance. Lady Stanley, for example, probably hardly understood the "alternation policy" as it is called, of abandoning the Mediterranean for the moment in the event of war with France; but her instant remark reported in the Times by Mrs. Courtney, that she disapproved clearing any of the world's affairs by the sword, states the counter-argument almost completely in a sentence. Her summaries of character were just as effective, and had usually this effective quality, so rarely found in women who speak epigrammatically, that they were not ill used, that she saw the whole character and not its special weakness or peculiarity. We do not know if she ever used her influence, as Lord Beaconsfield thought she did, to secure patronage for her friends, but we are quite sure that if she did, she was not the path for the right persons, and never left on the patron's mind a false impression.—London Spectator.

A Musical Typewriter.
An ingenious young woman of New Orleans is about to bring to completion one of the most unique musical instruments perhaps ever yet invented. It is nothing more or less than a simple device with strings and sounding plate to be attached underneath the keyboard of a typewriting machine, in such a manner that when a letter is struck by the operator a note of music will be produced instead of the ordinary click-clack noise which sometimes becomes so very disagreeable. Of course, it is only once in a hundred times, no doubt, that such a combination of letters will be struck as to produce any real harmony of sound, still each note will be distinctly musical, and the invention will probably greatly enhance the use and value of the type writer. It is expected that a patent will soon be applied for.

A New Way of Catching Rabbits.
In some parts of Australia a tank trap is growing greatly in favor for the extermination of rabbits. It consists of a tank containing water at the bottom, into which the rabbits jump, and from which they are unable afterwards to escape. It, however, is successful on a large scale only during the dry months of the year. A couple of stations using seven of them recently captured 20,000 rabbits in one week, and it is calculated that they can destroy 10,000 a month regularly.—New York Advertiser.

The King and the Page.
The great Frederick was very fond of snuff. He had a box of it put on every mantelpiece in the palace. One day he saw his page holding himself liberally. He said nothing then, but a little while afterwards he took the boy to bring him the box. "Take a pinch," said the king; "do you mind it?" "Excellent, sire," said the boy.

"Very well," returned Frederick, "keep it, then; it does not hold enough for two."

Two Opinions.
Mr. Morally Good.—My dear sir, there's no earthly use of my joining the church.

Pastor.—But there's a heavenly use, my dear friend.

HER MAJESTY.

She wears a royal golden crown,
Our little, laughing, daisy-faced queen;
The clustering curls o'er eyes of brown
Are bright as summer sunlight's gleam.
She wears a scepter o'er us all,
And we obey each proud command;
For we are laid in slavery's thrall
By that imperial, dimpled hand.
Her robes of state are pure as snow,
In every heart she finds a throne;
In all the land she has no foe
The name of rebel is unknown.

Her royal subjects, low and high,
Call many a costly tribute bring;
The clothes of her kingdom, I
Her humble poet laureate, sing.
Around my neck her soft arms twine,
My song is smothered in her curls;
Her sweet, fresh lips are pressed to mine;
Oh, baby—little queen of girls!

—Golden Days.
NINE TAILORS MADE A MAN.

An Old Proverb Very Interestingly Explained.
"Nine tailors made a man." This expression brings us to the consideration of the universal custom of the ringing of church bells, a practice regarded as almost sacred in most minds as being one of the ceremonies attached to the Christian faith.

Wrong, however, is a very superstitious one, and the ringing of bells was formerly practiced from a belief in their efficacy to drive away evil spirits. The "tailors" in the above phrase is a corruption of the word "tellers," or strokes tolled at the end of an hour.

Immediately on the death of a person a knell is tolled, the idea having originally been, as previously observed, to keep off hostile spirits from the now departing one.

In some places the departure of an adult was announced by nine strokes in succession; six were rung for a woman; three for a child. Hence it came to be said by those listening for the announcement, "Nine tellers make a man." As this custom became less general, and the illusion less generally understood, there was an easy transition from the word "tellers" to the more familiar one "tailors." At the present day, however, the custom is still the custom to toll nine times for a man.

That inveterate joker, Curran, took advantage of this popular saying to poke some fun in a good-natured way at his host on the occasion of his being constrained at dinner by eighteen of the Guild of Tailors for men, on leaving, rose and said, "Gentlemen, I wish you both good evening."

This anecdote reminds one of the tale told of a former skipper of a good-sized ship on which several hands had been employed, who had become so impregnated with the phases of command used in directing such a craft, that, when at length he took to working a small boat with the assistance of one other individual, and it became necessary to summon the crew, he would cry out, "All hands abaft!" he suddenly recollecting himself, he would add, "both of us."

The Parrot's Factions View.
The family of a professional man, living on the East Side, is the owner of a parrot of such precocity, wit and enterprising, that there often is some doubt as to whether the family owns the parrot or the parrot owns the family. On Christmas Day all the members of the household where this bird holds forth, with some relatives and guests, partook of a late breakfast and afterwards went into the parlors, where gifts were distributed, with the usual merriment and not ill used, that she saw the whole character and not its special weakness or peculiarity. We do not know if she ever used her influence, as Lord Beaconsfield thought she did, to secure patronage for her friends, but we are quite sure that if she did, she was not the path for the right persons, and never left on the patron's mind a false impression.—London Spectator.

Wisdom of the Wolf.
The extraordinary sagacity of wolves has been perfectly illustrated in a recent event on the upper Waldron Ridge. A cold day and Mr. Warnock took ten strychnine tablets and inserted them carefully in various parts of the body. He did not go near that vicinity for a couple of days, and when he did he was expecting to see some results from the bait. There was, however, no sign of a wolf, living or dead, in sight; he hunted around within a radius of a mile or two, but found nothing, and finally he went over and examined what remained of the dead coat. There was not much; the skin appeared to have been neatly and completely flayed from the body; nearly every particle of flesh was gone, as were also the ribs and bones and the smaller fore and hind legs had been wrenched off from the knee joint down and carried off some distance, where everything mangled on them had been properly mangled. The skin was almost intact, and spreading it out, hair side down, Mr. Warnock casually examined it, when he noticed with some surprise a small bunch of flesh that had been left untouched and which was adhering to the hide, and indeed in which was the strychnine tablet. A closer examination revealed that every single one of the ten strychnine pellets that had been inserted had been left singularly intact, and that the wolf had been all around them and not a single one touched. No wonder it is a difficult matter to catch wolves when they are endowed with a cunning like this. The explanation is that on the occasion Mr. Warnock had picked up the pellets before inserting them into the bait with his fingers, instead of, as was his usual custom, with a pair of forceps. But the fact illustrates the kind of fox the ranchers have to deal with.—McLeod Gazette.

A FEW HINTS TO GIRLS ON THE TREATMENT OF THE HAIR.

A girl's hair is one of her points of beauty, and it should never be neglected. Regular, steady brushing of the hair with a clean brush, dry strokes before going to bed at night, and morning washings with soap and water, will keep the hair clean, smooth, and soft. Once a month at least the tips of the hair should be clipped off, just the nearest tips, and at the edges, and a month the head should be very carefully washed, with tepid water and soap, thoroughly rubbed, and well dried. If mamma has time to take this sort of care of her daughter's hair, she will be repaid by seeing rich flowing tresses, or sisters may easily do it for one another. Do not cut your hair in bangs. It is very much prettier simply parted and combed back plainly, then braided in one or two long tails and tied with a ribbon. Use good hair oil, and pigments; the hair needs only cleanliness, and much brushing. Keep your hair-brush clean by frequently dipping it into a bath of hot water and ammonia, and drying it in the sun. Everything used in treating the hair must be scrupulously neat.

It is nice for a girl to have dainty toilet articles (she can, Silver, China, and Ivory are beautiful on one dressing-table, but they are only take pains, and order is itself beauty. Have a linen cover for your bureau or table prettily embroidered, and always add as a finishing touch a little vase of flowers.—Harper's Young People.

FREZZING OUT THE BRITISH FAIRMILK.

The Department of Trade and Commerce has received from Mr. E. S. Eaton, commercial agent of the Dominion at Christiana, a very interesting account of the new enterprise of shipping frozen milk to England, which has just called forth a wall of distress from the last resource, the milk trade, in being taken from him. Mr. Eaton says that about a year ago a gentleman, having a farm about three miles from Guelph, tried the experiment of sending a small quantity of frozen milk to England, and it proved so successful that he extended the process, and formed a company with a large capital, transformed a creamery into a freezer and factory for preparing the milk, and has now made arrangements to ship a million of milk a year round from farmers in his neighborhood in such quantities as will ensure the company delivering fifty tons a week of frozen milk to Manchester, Birmingham, Newcast, Leeds, Hull and London. It is also proposed to send the fresh milk, then freezing it in pounds of the frozen milk are placed in a barrel made of white pine and five hundred pounds more of unfrozen milk added. The barrel is filled very full so that there are no chaurings in transit, and the milk, it is said, will keep sweet and good for a month.

A DREADFUL DISEASE CURED.

Messrs. Douglas, B. & Co.,
Sunderland.—I have much pleasure in offering you testimonial on the cure of Barber's Itch. For over three weeks my face was nothing but a mass of sores, and it was still getting worse. It got so bad that I was ashamed to go out on the street. I went to a very prominent doctor at my home, and he told me it would be a few months before I could get rid of it. On a Sunday day I went in to see my wife, and about half an ounce of your Douglas Egyptian Lintment and requested me to try it. I thought I would give it a trial. I put it on my face that same day, and inside of three days my face was as smooth as ever it was. It is not a day, a week, a month, or a year, but I consider I have a permanent cure. I cannot recommend your Lintment too highly for the value it has been to me. This I declare to be true and correct.

I remain yours,
G. A. Mendenhall, Painter,
Tamworth, 18th May, 1893.

THE BAND OF MERCY.

The moral and value of the Band of Mercy lies in the influence of the simple promise made by the children, and given in the words, "I will try to be kind to all living creatures." The only things under the power of children are living creatures. Younger brothers and sisters and playmates, a dog, a cat, a bird, a mouse, a butterfly; these are the subjects of their childish power, and if they learn in their early days to be kind and merciful and gently, they have gained the greatest of life's lessons—self-government. The boy that holds in his hand unharmed, or out of mischief a dear and valued pet, a lamb, has made that conquest of himself which lays the foundation of all virtues and absolutely forms the backbone of character. Will a man who has learned the secret of self-control in boyhood and gained this power of self-control, be easily tempted to crime in manhood? It gives strength to the childish heart and mind to resist the passionate and brutal instincts inherent in humanity, and as small gymnastic feats, daily practiced, will develop, at last, the muscles of the athlete, so a child surrounded by the influences of humane education, accustomed daily to repress these evil impulses and to exercise benevolence toward living creatures, gains moral muscle, day by day.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Rev. E. N. Baker, of Belleville, conducted the services last Sunday, preaching able and eloquent sermons and advocating the claims of the Christian Church for support. The contributions to the cause were satisfactory.

Rev. R. Taylor filled the pulpit of Bridge Street Church, Belleville, last Sunday, preaching with great acceptance to large congregations.

The pastor will conduct the services next Sunday, "Resurrection" for his subject in the morning, and "Resurrection" in the evening. There will be suitable music on the occasion. All invited.

ST. MARK'S CHURCH NOTES.

The accustomed 'Holy Week' services are being held each evening in the Church up to and inclusive of Good Friday. On the latter day anniversary of our Saviour's Death upon the Cross, divine service is also held at 10.30 a. m. and 8 p. m.

The offerings on Good Friday will be devoted to Bishop Blyth's mission work among the Jews in Jerusalem and the East.

An invitation was extended last Sunday to all who could assist in providing the usual floral offerings for Easter Sunday by the loan of plants, etc., to bring or send them to the Church on Thursday or Friday evening. Kindly placing owners name on pots.

In order that all Communicants may have opportunity of receiving the 'Holy Feast' at Easter as the Church provides there will be a celebration at 8 a. m. as well as at mid-day.

Bright and hearty services are hoped for next Sunday. The officers of the Church also hope there will be a general and liberal response to the invitation to make special offerings (as well as the payment of arrears) to the general fund of the church.

The holding of the annual Easter vestry meeting, in which all parishioners are invited to be announced on Sunday next.

The choir will be assisted on Easter Sunday by a junior choir of young boys who have been and training by the choir master for several weeks past. Their assistance will no doubt be much appreciated and the general musical excellence of the Easter services of past years maintained.

In the Sunday School a handsome Easter number of a Sunday School paper will be given to each member present.

A MARVELOUS BLOSSOM.

Something About the Strange Flower of the Holy Ghost.

Many of you may, perhaps, in the greenhouse or in a collection of orchids, but it is a rare sight even there, and is seldom even in all its beauty. I saw it first, on the isthmus of Panama.

It is not a common plant, being found in certain sections only, in isolated clumps. It does not like high, dry soils, but low, marshy spots springing up from decayed logs or from crevices in the rocks.

To describe this beautiful flower, after a fashion, is easy enough, but to fully realize its peculiar loveliness and the marvelous accuracy of its shape one must see it. The larger and older bulbs frequently send up first a single stem, a foot in height, and from these, which are joined, broad lanceolate leaves are thrown out in pairs.

The plant is an annual, and in June, July and August the flower stalks start up from the base of the bulb, diverting all their energies to the formation of the buds. The buds are arranged on the stalks much like those of the hyacinth, the usual number for a well-grown stem being being from twelve to fifteen. The leaves are very pale green in color, as though in harmony with the delicate purity of the blossom.

The blossom is of alabaster whiteness, much like the old-style English pulpit. This, of itself, is strikingly curious, but it fades into insignificance when one looks into the centre of that strange blossom, for there, nestling in its very heart, is the perfect image of a dove, an exquisite imagination to see it. No one could mistake it for anything else, for no human skill could fashion its shape more perfectly than nature has done.

Right in the cup of the blossom, with the snow-white canopy about its head, this wondrous image, its delicately molded wings drooping, half extended at its side, its gold-tinted head bent slightly forward, and its tiny, crimson-tipped bill almost touching its snowy breast.

And just as the figure of the dove itself is there, beyond dispute, so does an expression pervade the image, an expression that even the most careless cannot fail to notice, the very incarnation of humility and spiritual purity.

So deeply was this feeling implanted in the hearts of the Indians, and so carefully was it handed down from generation to generation, that it has only been within a comparatively few years that collectors have been able to trace the precious bulbs to their native haunts—Philadelphia Times.

Marriage Under Difficulties.

A romantic story of the vicissitudes of a wedding party comes from Cumberland. The marriage of Miss Mabel Selus, youngest daughter of Major Selus of Enniskillen Hall, Frizlington, with Mr. John Howe, mining engineer of Havercroft, should have been solemnized at two o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, and the bride party of fourteen persons proceeded to Ardreeon Church to assist at the ceremony. The Rev. Alfred Charvin of Harrington, got so far as the house of the curate, the Rev. H. Sugden, where he became snow-blocked. The bridegroom started from his residence in a severe snowstorm, but failing to make progress on horseback, he tried driving, but was completely weather-blocked. Some of the snowdrifts were sixteen feet deep, and the roads were too bad to view. The party of fourteen had meanwhile gained the church unknown to the bridegroom, who gave up the quest and returned to his residence. The bride party and bride were now snowed up in church, where they had to pass the night, provisions and wraps having with difficulty been conveyed to the church by Messrs. Porey and George Snell. The happy couple were married at one o'clock yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Sugden, but the rain was so heavy the church had to be cleared by 200 laborers.—Yorkshire Evening Post.

A Well-Meeted Tramp.

Probably there wasn't another person in Midland so well prepared for unexpected as a tramp who has just visited Saco and Hildesheim. He had no overcoat, but as he wore two coats, two vests, two pairs of trousers and plenty of underwear, he didn't miss one much. When he wandered into the police station he bore a big bundle consisting of a heavy comforter rolled in a piece of oilcloth. In his pockets were found several dozens of loose matches, a big roll of newspapers, twelve, a bottle of insect powder, two hammons, a lot of cards, a handful of toothpicks, a shoestring, a wire nail, a collar button, a lead pencil and a carpenter's pencil, a box of indelible lead, an illustrated catalogue of rubber shoes, a purse with six cents and an old copper, a broken clay pipe, a new pocket-book, a piece of silk hat lining, two pieces of castle soap, three sea shells, a broken glass shell, a plug of tobacco, some lint, a spool of thread, a piece of wood, a paper of needles, a roll of birch bark, a muslin handkerchief, a package of several sketches of Bar Harbor and vicinity, a chestnut, a whetstone, a dozen pieces of rock, a new hairbrush, a pocket comb and a big wolverine spoon.—Boston Herald.

Drunkennes in England.

In England, during one year for which returns have been furnished, there were 142,720 convictions for drunkenness, of which 111,178 were for offences committed between noon and midnight on Sundays. These numbers show that there was almost as much indulgence on Sabbath days more than on others. In Wales the proportion of Sunday offences was still smaller, numbering only 773 out of a total of 10,467. Compared with this return for the whole of Wales, there is significance in the fact that in the county of Monmouth, to which the Sunday closing act does not apply, there were 110 convictions for drunkenness on Sunday, against 58 on other days.—London Daily News.

TYENDINAGA RESERVE.

The churches on Easter Day were filled, services bright and hearty, offerings for mission fund very liberal, number of communicants 54.

We think we have discovered the meanest man on record. The fee charged for whities who bury in Christ church cemetery is $3. The individual we refer to now refuses to pay that amount after burying a relative.

Two of the trustees of the Luck school house have left the school; 's one competent to conduct the business, 's one legal for outsiders to look after the funds?

Owing to the Missionary's accident he could not go to the church to attend the Easter vestry meeting. It was consequently at the request of twenty-six vestry men held in the parsonage, the incumbent presiding under the difficulties.

The meeting was most harmonious, funds in a prosperous condition. The church wardens for Christ church are Joseph J. Maracle and W. A. S. Maracle, for All Saints church Isaac Cless and Peter J. Hill. The lay delegate elected for three years is Chief Francis Cless.

Good Friday services were well attended. While the Rev. Mr. Anderson and his daughters were on their way from All Saints church on Easter Sunday evening, an important bolt of the buggy gave way throwing its occupants violently to the ground.

The missionary 's shoes were disintegrated while Miss Anderson received several severe bruises. Fortunately a friend, Wylie Mark, was soon on the spot and secured the services of Johnson Lewis who drove the injured to the parsonage. Dr. Yeomans was immediately sent for who set the person's shoulder and prescribed for Miss Anderson's injuries. Both are doing well but it will be some time before Mr. Anderson, who is weak from his late illness, recovers from the shock.

BATH.

On Saturday last the local entertainers gave a treat to the good folks of Bath, and the entertainment being for a charitable purpose the company generously donated ten per cent. of their share of the proceeds to the fund. This more than made up for the deficit caused by a very strong opposition and certain articles which recently appeared in the papers concerning the concert being held during Holy Week. The audience was select and judging from the applause given they were not disappointed. Space will not permit mention of all the selections but suffice to say they were all suitable and meritorious with the manner in which they were rendered was a revelation. Fifty that more of such talent were heard more frequently for it shows that our people can appreciate something higher and better than the negro melodies and border tunes so often presented here.

Many of the audience were surprised to find that no dance which they were rendered was a revelation. Fifty that more of such talent were heard more frequently for it shows that our people can appreciate something higher and better than the negro melodies and border tunes so often presented here.

Much credit is due to the A. O. U. W., J. O. F. and C. O. C. F. lodges, under whose auspices the concert was held, for the manner in which they worked against a very decided opposition and that from a quarter from which it should be expected.

MOHAWKS OF THE BAY OF QUINTE

The following is Indian Agent Eger's report to the Superintendent General of Indian affairs as found in Blue Book—

Sir—I beg to submit my annual report in duplicate and tabular statement on the Bay of Quinte Reserve for the year ended 30th June, 1894.

The Indians under my agency have done very well in their farming operations. The crops are very good this year, being above the average. Provisions and fodder will be in abundance. A great deal has been done in the way of improvements to houses, barns and fences. Chief Solomon Lett has taken a great deal of interest in the improving of the roads and already they show the good work done. A great many of our Indians had work among the farmers in the county of Prince Edward and have learned to be good agriculturists. A marked improvement has been shown in the sobriety of the band. A number of our Indians continue to devote their attention to gardening, the work of Deseronto consuming all their off-morning find employment in the works of the Rathbun Company. There is a good brass band upon the Reserve, for which Dr. Oropheus is to be thanked, as he secured the instruments for the boys. In the spring a ditch ninety rods long was dug, redeeming about four hundred acres of land. Chief Sampson Green does mission work as assistant to the missionary at the mission school, where the service is held in our Indian language and is very highly appreciated by the Indian people. Three of the chiefs visited the Relay River for the purpose of securing ten thousand acres of wild lands to offer homes for the young men; the matter of purchase is now before the department.

The school has been in session during the year and has been well attended. There are services in both churches each Sunday. The school is well attended. The children are vaccinated. The sanitary condition of the reserve is excellent.

W. O. EGAN, Indian Agent.

DOUGLAS' EGYPTIAN LINIMENT

A DREADFUL DISEASE CURED.

Messrs. Douglas Bros. & Co. Gentlemen—I have much pleasure in offering you testimonial on the cure of Barbers' Itch. For over three weeks my face was nothing but a mass of sores, and it was still getting worse. It got so bad that I was ashamed to go out on the street. I was told it would be a few months before I could get rid of it. On Sunday a neighbor came in to see me with about half an ounce of your Douglas' Egyptian Liniment and requested me to try it. I thought I would give it a trial; I put it on my face that same day, and inside of three weeks my face was as smooth as ever it was. I might also say that I only bathed my face once and that I consider I have a permanent cure. I cannot recommend your Liniment too highly for the value it has been to me. This I declare to be true and correct. I remain yours, C. A. MYROUD, Painter, Tamworth, 16th May, 1893.

A Pleasing and Marvelous Record from a City Educational Institution.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND AND ITS GOOD WORK.

The Sisters call it the "Wonder-working Medicine," and Strongly Recommend Its Use.

No medicine in the world has ever earned or received the high and unstinted praise that has been justly accorded to Paine's Celery Compound. Testimonials (many of them of uncertain authenticity and questionable veracity) appear each week, advocating the use of medicine, worthless and of no value to the sick and suffering.

Paine's Celery Compound stands on a summit of fame, far removed from all the deceptive medicine of the day. Its letters of testimony come from the best people, and from institutions whose names are synonymous with honor and uprightness.

Among the large and noted institutions of medicine, is among the largest, the origin and healing virtues of Paine's Celery, is true "Convent of the Holy Names," in the city of Montreal.

This thorough and magnificently equipped institution of learning, is among the largest of the kind on this continent, and has

A Happy Choice.

AFTER 25 YEARS.

A WEEK MONTH CHANGES THE RIGHT MEDICINE AND HER OWN TELLERS OF ITS WONDERFUL RESULTS.

GENUINITY.—In the spring of 1891 I got a bottle of B. B. for my mother, who had been troubled for 25 years with Sick Headache. I got it from Mr. H. P. Patton, Belvidere, N. B., who gave me two bottles of medicine to take home and let my mother take her choice. Fortunately she chose the B. B. and I returned the other bottles. She used it for three months and her headache disappeared. We are sure it was B. B. cured her as she took no other medicine.

SUMMER SCHOOL OF SCIENCE.

A summer school of science for public and high school teachers and others will be opened on July 10th, in Kingston, and continue four weeks by the staff of the school of mining and agriculture. The object is twofold, to give to teachers an opportunity of studying the chemistry, mineralogy, geology, botany and zoology of the farm, as recommended by the department of education, and to enable teachers who cannot attend at university during the winter to prepare for the practical part of the special examination and university examinations. The only $50—a popular boon.

SPEED OF WILD DUCKS AND GESE.

THE DUCKS MADE SIXTY-SIX AND TWO THIRDS MILES AN HOUR, AND OUTLIT THE GESE.

Of all the migratory birds the American wild pigeon and black duck are well up towards the front as regards long and rapid flight. The speed of the pigeons can only be estimated, while that of the ducks can be established by observation. Some years ago the writer and a scientific friend measured off on the shore of a large western lake a line exactly three miles long, and each took a station at opposite ends of the line. The object was to note, by means of prearranged signals, the time a flock of wild ducks took in passing up or down the river, near the stations.

During three hours on the morning of a bright October day, observations were noted of the time of passing the stations of nine different flocks. Upon comparing watches it was found that the average time was two minutes and forty-two seconds, thus showing the speed per hour to be sixty-six and two thirds miles, or one mile in fifty-four seconds. As showing how uniform was their flight, difference was found of only five seconds between the greatest and the least intervals of time.

As numerous flocks of wild geese were daily flying in the same neighborhood observations were also taken to test their hourly speed. Two points twenty miles apart were selected, and the time of flight of one third mile apart were selected, both of which were connected by telegraph. We succeeded in identifying four out of the seven flocks which passed over both places during the four days we were on the watch. The mean hourly speed was found to be a fraction over fifty-four miles. The wild geese have been long supposed to be the swiftest of all water fowl, but this experiment shows that they are behind the wild duck. —New York World.

NERVOUS PEOPLE.

And those who are all tired out and have that tired feeling or sick headache can be relieved of all these symptoms by taking Hodge's Serravallo's, which gives nerve, strength and bodily strength and thoroughly purifies the blood. It also creates a good appetite, cures indigestion, heartburn and dyspepsia.

over thirty branch houses in Canada and the United States.

After a thorough trial of Paine's Celery Compound in the head house, by sisters who suffered from the troubles that make human life miserable, and seeing the truly great results—health, vigor, strength and strong nerves—it was deemed advisable in the interests of suffering humanity, to make a declaration that would give comfort, assurance and hope to all sufferers in the land. The sisters have kindly and graciously written as follows:—

"We feel it a duty to add our testimony in favor of your 'wonder-working' Paine's Celery Compound. Many sisters suffering from debility, dyspepsia, sleeplessness and indigestion, have been completely relieved after taking it."

"We have strongly recommended it to all our house, and the best medicine to restore all health, and give tone and vigor to the nervous system."

SPRING CLEANING.

To be beforehand at this season of the year in cleaning up our streets, lanes and yards is to head off disease. Out on the prairie they foot a fire by burning a belt in front of it, so that when it reaches that point there is nothing upon which it may feed. This is precisely the way we should clean up our yards. We can do this by the use of the spring sun will soon uncover in our lanes and yards. Frost is a great antiseptic and snow a great cleanser; but the sun is rapidly putting both to flight and the winter's accumulation to say nothing of what was left over from last autumn—will soon be found in the warm air and under the powerful sunlight, if we do not now carry it away. No better breeding ground for disease could be produced if we set about it with malice aforethought. Nor could one find any cheaper remedy than to simply, now while there is time, remove the cause. A clean town is a healthy town, and the reverse is equally true. We can well afford to spend more money in keeping our streets and lanes cleaner; for we will far more than save it in the bills, and other expenses incident to sickness.

A CAT ADOPTS YOUNG FOXES.

Last Saturday, Albert Kendrick purchased a fox with six young ones. His intention was to raise the young reynards and tame them. He had the old one secured by a strap but by some means his foxes got loose and skipped during the night. The quarry was now how far to catch the young ones. Mr. Kendrick did not have to remain in this frame of mind long as the house cat, which had just lost a litter of kittens, came round and adopted the young foxes as her own. The cat and her family are happy in their new relations with every prospect of the juvenile foxes growing to maturity. —Hawley Press.

THEY ARE GIVING AWAY.

PHYSICIANS COMBINE TO REALIZE THE VALUE OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Ottawa, April 15.—The inveterate reluctance to admit the success of patent medicine, usually evinced by physicians, is rapidly giving way as far as Dodd's Kidney Pills are concerned. The cases of Dr. Ross and Dr. McCormick, who published details of their recovery from diabetes and Bright's disease, through the agency of this remedy, were the first attack on the closed to skepticism and now it appears as if the remarkable recovery of Mr. G. H. Kent, of this city, the details of which have been already transmitted to the press, would complete what has been so suspiciously begun. The published interviews with Mr. Kent and his wife, who are the latest of the former, leave no foothold for disbelief.

ORILLIA'S PROMINENT FURNITURE DEALER GIVES FACTS.

Orillia, Feb. 10th, 1891.

EDMANSON, BATES & CO., Gentlemen.—About three or four weeks ago I had an attack of Itching Piles. I tried two or three different remedies recommended by druggists as "the best and only cure," etc., etc., but got no relief. About the time I was beginning to despair of finding any relief from some slight misgiving I bought a box of your pile cure, which I am pleased to say gave me almost instant relief and permanent cure. I consider your Ointment a God-send. ALF. J. DEAN, Montreal.

The great favor in which Ayer's Pills are held all over the world has been well earned. They are easy and even pleasant to take, and for all complaints of the stomach, liver, and bowels, are the safest and most thorough medicine in pharmacy. Every dose effective.

HARTIZING A BABY KING

The month of June in the year 1811 seemed the crowning point of all the magnificence of the first empire. It was a month of display—one continued fête in honor of the little king's baptism.

Philip had been one of the retinue that had escorted the imperial family from St. Cloud to the Tuilleries on the afternoon of the fifth of June. With the other ladies the imperial coach was on the next morning, the 7th of June—it was driven through the middle of long glittering helmets and nodding plumes, and the whole row of the troops of the line and of the imperial guard stretched from the palace of the Vatican to the castle of St. Peter's. Dame. Under the garlanded portal, it went to the brilliantly lighted church he had reached, and the glittering procession, headed by the emperor, the empress, the archbishops of the senate, the cardinals and the mayors of the great cities of the empire, followed in a column of twelve abreast, bordered with ermine, and with the emperor upheld by a marshal of the empire; with his mother, the empress, walking in imperial robes, and with the empress, the emperor, and his famous father, the emperor, under another gorgeous canopy; with a princess holding the imperial candle, a princess carrying his salt-cellar, and all about him princes and dukes, chamberlains and courtiers, and a host of great nobles, princes, grand masters and great lords of other orders; With ushers and heralds and orderlies and pages; supported by his brothers, his sons, his nephews, his grandsons for a godfather and queen for a godmother—this one little baby, Francis Joseph, Emperor, King of Rome and heir to the throne of Austria, in baptism at the high altar of the grand old church which had been the scene of so many of the great events of the world's events, but never of one more so

So the baby was baptized. Then, in sight of the whole assembly, while the organ pealed out the "Jubilate," and the first herald at arm, standing in the choir, cried out, "Long live the King of Rome!" the baby's proud father held his son aloft where all might see his little magnificence. Then all the crowded church, all the packed square without and all the listening city raised a mighty shout: "Long live the King of Rome! Long live the emperor!"

Letters found upon the rebels captured at the recent attack upon Bocas del Toro disclose the fact that high officials of Nicaragua contributed funds and arms to the rebels.

I call it about the cheapest way on earth." That was an answer that left no room for a rejoinder.

Never put your matches and your cough lozenges in the same pocket. Red phosphorus combined with chlorate of potash to make an explosive of great violence. Mr. Shortt, who is eighty-one years old, rushed out with his gun, took rapid aim and brought down a fine goose. He evidently retains his nerve wonderfully well. Chief Gunyon, having decided to carry on the livery business, will resign his present position which he has so satisfactorily filled, his resignation to take effect on the first of June. This property is one of the best of the kind in this part of the province, having always enjoyed a large and profitable patronage. It was found that the piece of steel had penetrated the eye to the very back of the ball where it was lodged. Mr. Gammon showed us the tiny piece of metal having brought it home with him. He returned to Deseronto last Tuesday afternoon and, with care, it is hoped that no bad effects will follow. He has general sympathy in his trouble. During his stay at the Lucas he received many practical expressions of sympathy from A. J. McLaren, M. P. P., Capt. Grant, Messrs. Evans, Lipp, Howell and other old Deserontonians in the Queen City as well as from the Oddfellows' fraternity generally.

ST MARK'S CHURCH NOTES.

As some extracts from the minutes of the Easter vestry meeting are elsewhere given, the notes this week are brief. We do not wish to trespass.
Easter services were hearty and inspiring. The church was bright with floral decorations thoughtfully supplied by members of the congregation and their friends. The Easter music was well rendered throughout. The efficient local choir received the valuable and kindly rendered assistance of Miss Daly and Miss Bennett, of Napanee, together with that of Mrs. Bennett. The sweet voices of the visitors added much to the effect of the services. The voices of the boy chorists too happily blended with those of their seniors in the hymns. About 100 received Easter Holy Communion at the two customary celebrations.
The congregation generously responded to the invitation to make Easter offerings, etc. the collection last Sunday exceeding $150. About $70 is still required on the year's accounts.
The vestry meeting was a very pleasant one and augurs well for a prosperous new congregational year.

THE GOOD THAT ONIONS DO.

Thus, the model is a  $2 \times 2 \times 2$  factorial design.

Group and Even Cure an Ear Ache.
One of the healthiest vegetables, if no

The healthiest, grown is the onion; yet strange to say, but few people use it as liberally as they should. Boiled onions are frequently in a family of children, and will be found in many of the houses in which the little ones are subject. The principal objection to the promiscuous use of this vegetable is that, the odor exhales after eating is so offensive. A cup of strong coffee taken immediately after eating is claimed to be excellent in counteracting this effect. Although for a day or so after eating onions the breath may have a disagreeable odor, yet after that time it will be much sweeter than before. In some group onion poultices are used with success, providing the child is kept open to the drainage of the system.

Onions are made into an excellent poultice for the treatment of the inflamed joints, and are applied in the form of poultices by warming the onions in goose oil until soft, then putting them on the child's feet and chest as hot as the child can bear. Except in very obstinate cases, when taken in time, the crowd readily yields to onions. This, although an old-fashioned remedy, is a good one as any mother who has brought up a family of children can attest.

Onions are excellent blood purifiers, and for emollient boils or any of the blood humors are very efficacious. They are good for the complexion, and a friend who has a wonderfully clear, fine complexion, attributes it to the liberal use of onions as

There are few adverbs to which children are subject as hard to bear and as painful as carache. One of the best remedies I know is to take out the heart of an onion and to put it in the best fire it can be had, although, I believe, the kindling (which can be used) and roast it. When soft, put it into the affected ear as hot as it can be borne. Unless the cause is deeper than ordinarily the pain will cease in a very

A cough syrup in which onions form an important part is made by taking a cup of vinegar, one cup of treacle or one-half cup of cut-up onions. Put in the stove and simmer about half an hour or until the onions are soft. Then remove and strain. Take a teaspoonful of it frequently when troubled with a cough, and unless very deep seated the cough will not last long.

White Stockings and Black.
Fifty years ago the female domestic servant could rarely afford to wear, save on high days or holidays, a pair of white stockings; she either knitted coarse ribbed blue worsted stockings for herself, or she bought black stockings. Those sable hose frequently with an orifice in one heel were the distinguishing badge of the lodging-house "slavery," but about twenty years ago a remarkable sumptuous

Twenty years ago a remarkable sartorial change came over the upper and lower sections of English female society. What stockings, save for balls, were suddenly repudiated, and black silk hose for ladies and children became the almost universal wear. The French are extremely fond of asserting that they set the fashions to the world at large. I contend that, in a number of instances, we have prescribed patterns to the French. And I was amused lately at reading, in the Paris

Figaro, an article vehemently protesting against the partitionage by French ladies of the hideous mode Britannique of bas noirs.—G. A. Sala, in London Telegraph.

An Ancient Ple.

Let us not forget that to-day is the anniversary of the death of Sir Theodor Mayerne, physician of James I. and Charles I. He amassed a prodigious of wealth and wrote the great cook book of the seventeenth century. Here is a recipe for "A City of London Pie": "Take eight marrow bones, eight sparrows, one pound of potatoes, a quart of a pound of stringoos, two ounces of lard, two stalks, forty chestnuts, half a pound of dates, a peck of eysters, a quarter of a pound of preserved citron, three anchovies, twelve eggs, two sliced lemons, a handful of picked barberries, a quart of an ounce of whole pepper, half ounce of sliced nutmeg, half an ounce whole cinnamon, a quarter of an ounce of whole cloves, half an ounce of mace and a quarter of a pound of currant liquor when it is laked, with white wine butter and sugar."—Boston Journal.

ceived a dispatch instructing him to vote with Prussia for a certain important measure, accompanied with a confidential letter directing him to induce the representatives of the other German States to vote against the measure and thus defeat it. In his haste he handed the wrong paper to Bismarck, who read and returned it with the remark: "There must be some mistake here." Reichberg made his blunder, and grew pale and excited. "Don't be disturbed," said Bismarck.

"Yes, what did you want to lie to the fellow like that for?" he asked after the prospective purchaser had departed.

"Why, I didn't lie to him."

"Yes, you did. You told him there wasn't a mosquito on the place, and "I saw great swarms of them buzzing around when I was there."

"Yes, but that's all they were doing buzzing around. I forgot to tell him that it was so windy there that the mosquito couldn't make a landing."—San Francisco Post

ADVICE TO OWNERS OF HORSES.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR SCRATCHES, GREASE, HEEL, ETC.

A man you all know, and a man of experience gives the following:—

"I have used Dr. COLEMAN'S PASTE for scratches and grease heel on horses, 'in my stable,' and from principle alone must say it is the only remedy I have ever found that will cure. I have tried everything I could get, but without success. Dr. COLEMAN'S PASTE, being a new preparation and highly recommended, I determined to try it. The one 25 cent box cured the worst case of grease heel ever in my stable inside three days. I consider it just what all horsemen require. Try it once."

Yours truly,
(Signed) C. A. ANDERSON,
Anderson's Livery and Bus Line, Napanea.

Upon receipt of price, "25c" cents, will mail 1 box Coleman's Paste, post paid, to any address, under a positive guarantee.

The vestry adjourned until Monday the 22nd at 8.10 p. m.

The People Speak!

THEY SPREAD THE GLAD NEWS.

Paine's Celery Compound Makes Them Well.

After Suffering for 18 Years the Great Spring Medicine Cures Mrs. G. H. Parker.

Eighteen years of intense suffering, disappointment and anxiety!

Failure after failure with doctors and worthless medicines, and the end of the road for Mrs. G. H. Parker, Winona, Ont.

After some persuasion, Mrs. Parker was induced to give Paine's Celery Compound a fair and honest trial.

What happy glad results! Such a victory over suffering! Complete cure and renewed health!

The following is Mrs. Parker's unadorned testimony:—

"I have been a great sufferer from neuritis for nearly eighteen years; these sufferings at times were so bad that words would fail to describe them. After having tried every known remedy, and after many consultations with the best of the physicians, and receiving no help I was persuaded to try your Paine's Celery Compound, which I have been using for the past four months. I am happy to say that I am now a different woman and completely cured. I can recommend your Paine's Celery Compound to all my friends, for it has been worth hundreds of dollars to me."

Cold in the head—Neural Balm gives instant relief; speedily cures. Never fails.

FROM DEAD EXPOSURE.

Miss Lillian Stephenson, aged eighteen, Frankville, left home on Tuesday evening, 16th inst., for a walk along the creek, intending to come back for tea. She was not seen again, and on the morning of the 18th, about eight o'clock after searching since six o'clock, Tuesday night, her body was found in a fence corner. No marks of violence or foul play could be found. She was in her usual health, and was wearing her usual dress, a soiled dress, with an underkirt fastened around her head and throat. "Death from exposure" was the verdict of the jury on the morning of the 19th inst.

The evidence of the search party who found the remains showed that her tracks in a bog near where she lay and from the fact that her clothing was soaked through above the waist, it is thought that the unfortunate girl wandered into the water, and became so exhausted in her attempt to get out as to be unable to return home. The shoes and rubbers which were missing were found in the swamp. Tuesday night was very cold, and the girl and taken off her skirt and wrapped it around her neck. The legs were badly scratched, showing that she had dragged herself over stumps and logs in the swamp. She was the sister of the Rev. Mr. Stephenson of Frankville, and had been residing with him for some time.

A WISE MOTHER CHOOSES THE RIGHT MEDICINE AND HER SON TELLS OF ITS WONDERFUL EFFECTS.

CHATELAIN.—In the spring of 1891 I got a bottle of Dr. B. B. B. for my mother, who had been troubled for 25 years with Sick Headache. I got it from Mr. H. Paxton Baird, of Woodstock, N. B., who gave me two other bottles. I used one of the bottles and let my mother take her bottle. Fortunately she chose the B. B. B. and I returned the other bottle.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

EXISTING GRAVEL ROADS.

Practical Hints by Which They May be Very Much Improved.

On a number of occasions throughout the country, municipal councils have expended considerable money in reducing grades and putting on gravel, but in the majority of these cases the gravel has been put on without any attention being paid to the reduction of grades or the proper formation of the road-bed. It has been found that these roads not only are rough and uneven, but are consequently rough and unpleasant to drive on during the remainder of the year.

A summary of such roads is:

1st. Have the road properly drained, according to the specifications herein given for the construction of new roads.

2nd. By the use of a road machine and a gang of men, the construction of the road bed and work to the gutters as hereinbefore described, leaving the road smooth as if building a new one. See that the gutters have proper and uniform fall for the surface water, and that the trenches are made leading to the side ditches.

3rd. Put on a sufficient quantity of the best gravel obtainable to complete the crown of the road, and carefully watch it with a rake until the construction of the road is complete.

4th. Never neglect to see that the rake is sufficiently used to prevent the formation of ruts and maintain a proper crown to the road so as to secure the shedding of the water.

5th. Where grades are steep and irregular and can be reduced at reasonable cost, it is advisable to make such reductions before expending any further money in graveling, in which case the present gravel should be taken up and laid to one side, so that it may be relaid, but generally where there are slight changes to break up the old foundation in order to secure perfect uniformity in grade.

There are two kinds of gravel—one that will pack under travel, and can, round gravel, which will not.

This is due to a small proportion of clay or earthy matter contained in the former which causes it to pack together.

Good gravel is composed of clean, rounded pebbles of all sizes, which easily move and slide upon each other, is unsuitable for road covering unless other materials be mixed with it, while pit gravel usually contains too much earthy matter.

The gravel for the top layer at least must be hard and tough so that the wear will not pack it and convert it into dust and mud.

It should be coarse, varying in size from 3/4 to 1 1/2 inches in diameter; it should not be water-worn and should contain enough sand or clayey loam to bind it together firmly.

Pit gravel usually contains so much earthy material that it should be screened to remove the unsuitable for the surface layer. For this purpose two wire screens will be necessary—one with the wire from one and one-half to two inches apart, and another with the wire from one and one-half to two inches apart.

The pebbles which do not pass the large screen are to be rejected, or it should be broken up, and run through the smaller screen.

Months, while the earth, small gravel and sand that pass the smaller one, although not suitable for the road surface, with inferior for a hard for the road surface to rest on. If the bed of the road is rock, a layer of earth should be interposed to prevent the too rapid wear of the latter.

An ordinary fall of an excavation to the depth of six or eight inches, and of the required width, is made for the reception of the gravel. The surface of this excavation, called the subgrade, may be made level, or preferably it may be arranged parallel to the finished road surface by sloping from the centre to the sides.

A layer four inches thick of good screened gravel in its natural state should be first spread upon the subgrade, which is then thrown up to travel until it becomes tolerably well consolidated.

The remainder of the material should then be put on and kept properly in shape by a rake until thoroughly compacted, which can be hastened by the use of a five-ton roller.

On ordinary country roads gravel eight feet wide and nine inches deep is sufficient.—A. W. Campbell, C.E., in Municipal World.

TOWN COUNCIL.

A meeting of the Town Council was held on the evening of Thursday, April 18th. Present—The Mayor, presiding, Reeve Dalton, Deputy Reeve Vandervoort, Councilors Irvine, Gracy, Dryden, Lowe, Parham, Pearson, Rusk and Gault.

Minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

The following communications were read:

From Councilor Parham tendering his resignation. Councilor Parham having stated that he wished to reconsider his action, on motion of Reeve Dalton, seconded by Councilor Gracy, the communication was ordered to be filed.

From Councilor Irvine, seconded by Councilor Gracy, an application for the position of streets commissioner offering to perform the duties at $1.50 per diem. On motion of Councilor Irvine, seconded by Councilor Lowe, it was referred to the Streets Committee.

The following applications were received for the position of chief constable: Wm. Pearson, offering to perform the duties for $40 per month; James Montgomery for $500 per annum; A. B. Leggat, same salary per annum; E. Fringle, $525 per annum; Jacob Borden, $45 per month. On motion of Reeve Dalton, seconded by Councilor Irvine, the different applications were referred to the Police committee.

A petition was received from the Citizens' Band, for pecuniary assistance and mentioning the sum of three hundred dollars as being necessary to place the organization on a satisfactory basis. Manager Mowat explained the situation in a few remarks. Councilor Irvine moved, seconded by Councilor Pearson, that $100 be granted; Councilor Parham moved in amendment, seconded by Councilor Gracy, that $200 be granted; Reeve Dalton, seconded by Councilor Lowe, moved as another amendment, that $150 be granted. The yeas and nays were asked and the council voted as follows: For the amendment proposing $150—Yeas—Dalton, Gault, Lowe, nays—Dryden, Irvine, Rusk, Parham, Vandervoort, Gracy, Haliburn and Pearson. For the first amendment proposing $200—Yeas—Parham, Gracy, Haliburn, nays—Dalton, Gault, Dryden, Irvine, Pearson, Rusk, Lowe, Vandervoort, for the original motion proposing $100—Yeas—Dalton, Gault, Dryden, Pearson, Irvine, Rusk, Lowe, Vandervoort; nays—Parham, Gracy and Haliburn.

A petition was presented from R. Geddis and others asking for a hydrant on the corner of St. George and Main streets. Councilor Rusk thought that the East ward was the place to have the hydrant, and other councilors referred to the need for an extension of the water service if practicable. On motion of Councilor Dryden, seconded by Councilor Pearson, the petition was referred to the Fire Committee to look into the whole matter of fire protection and report at next meeting.

Accounts for gas for March, $1.23 and an account for bread furnished for charitable purposes by D. G. Vandewater $2, were, on motion of Councilor Dryden, seconded by Councilor Gault, referred to respective committees.

Reeve Dalton, for the Streets, Market and Gas committee, reported that the sum of $11.41 had been paid for labor done; that W. H. Harvey had been appointed streets commissioner at $1.50 per day while working. On motion of Reeve Dalton, seconded by Councilor Dryden, the report was received and adopted.

Deputy Reeve Vandervoort, for the Charity committee, reported that the sum of $21.75 had been distributed in charity; recommended following bills to be paid: M. W. Woodcock, $2; Jacques $3; Watson and Co. $1; Dalton $6; R. N. Irvine $1.50; M. A. Werden $2.50; H. Vanblarck $2; J. Edwards $1.50; J. Hart $1; stated that the Howard child would probably be admitted at the Orphan institution; and presented the claims of G. Scrimshaw, aged 8, to compensation. On motion of Deputy Reeve Vandervoort, seconded by Councilor Rusk, the report was received and adopted.

Councilor Gracy drew attention to the necessity of a better system of announcing the location of fires, etc., and Councilor Dryden suggested the formation of a fire company with Alex. Smith or some such capable man in command. On motion of Councilor Gracy, seconded by Councilor Pearson, these matters were referred to the Town Property, Fire and Police committee with power to report.

Councilor Irvine, seconded by Councilor Lowe, moved that the Collector be given another month to collect balance of taxes twenty dollars and be collected since the previous meeting of council.

Councilor Lowe asked what progress the Streets committee had made with the new boardwalk system. Councilor Irvine, seconded by Councilor Gracy, moved that a boardwalk be laid down at a former meeting. It was evident that the committee had not completely understood their instructions, as they considered that they had only to report on the question. Chairman Dalton said that nothing had been done, he thought that no taxes were paid in that part of town, no boardwalk should be built. Assessor Geddis, on being asked, reported that the assessment in that district amounted to $8,000. Mayor Haliburn and Councilors Gracy, Parham, etc., thought that a boardwalk in that section was only a matter of common justice. On motion of Deputy Reeve Vandervoort, seconded by Councilor Gracy, the Streets committee were instructed to lay down a boardwalk from Main street to Thomas street, connection being made with the West End Mission on the north side of the street, leading to the hall. The council adjourned to meet on the third Thursday of May.

SPRING'S HEADGEAR.

A SUBJECT WHICH INTERESTS WOMANKIND ALL OVER.

Bright Tips on Straw Hats—New Shapes in Straw—A Matter of Bonnet Strings—Trimming That Trim and Those That Don't.

This time the fashion is found in the calendar of fashions. "A hat is a thing that is worn in the spring hats." They are already on view in great numbers and are chiefly characterized by size and shape. The chief exceptions to this are the sailor and the turban. The sailor, the latter of which is made of material to match the gown and are entirely correct. It is even said that coming in the nature of an elaborate mob cap to go with summer gowns of the same materials. Then a woman will be with her entire rig to the wash-tub hat and all.

The other exception to the rule, the sailor, is not so common. It is always sizable, it has caught the infection for highly wrought trimmings come out with its one-time plainness. It is a sailor's hat, its brim is round, of the same width everywhere and curved up a little. The crown is very low. This sailor's hat is at times trimmed, the trimming starting in front and extending to the sides. There is none at the back. A bow of crisp satin ribbon and a handsome bow at the front is the usual trimming. A pretty wing is sometimes tucked under the last on each side, the point of the wing slanting upward, and an upright tiny plume or sprig of flowers immediately in front of the hat.

The specially correct material for such a hat for early spring—right away if you like—is a smooth felt with a wide edge of mixed rough straw about the brim and an insertion of straw in the crown. The favorite shade for the felt is rich brown, the straw being mixed brown yellow and red. The bows of ribbon will be brown, the wings will be scarlet and the crown of algaire or plume will be black. Such a hat is suitable for the street and will be charmingly with it, the sailor's hat. In some cases the felt on the sides of the brim is faced with satin ribbon of some bright shade, preferably cerise.

The sort of glorified sailor that has been done is seen in the initial picture, but the other illustration is decidedly a showy kind. There is no reason for losing hope because it is ordered that all hats have play and an air of freshness, for there are few sailing changes in styles. The pliable chips of former seasons will be again used, and the curve produced by a little button between the base of the crown and the beginning of the brim will be a becoming feature of spring hats. As a rule brims will be turned up at the back and a jaunty deviation from the perpendicular may add style by giving a little tilt to the brim. The hat will be made in general is flat, with a wide, upstanding plume, algaire or upstanding loops, this embellishment on each wherever it is desired. The hat will be made as a rule a little at the side and back.

A charming model that conforms to these general rules and is stylish with a touch of being unduly conspicuous, is of butter-color chip, the rosettes are a corn color and the bright green leaves and berries are exact copies of the little bunchberry plant. The hat is made by making the woods bright. The feathers are black. The hat ties on with narrow brown velvet straps that pass under the chin and fasten just under the ear, the end finishing in rosettes to match those on the hat. This will be one of the new features of the spring "bonnet strings." At the back of the hat, close against the base of the turned-back brim, is a bunch of the polished green leaves and the scarlet berries. The hair of the girl who wears such a hat should be as clear and rich as brown as the velvet of the rosettes.

Time was when the shape of the hat itself was the important thing, and when, once selected with care and pride it was then adorned by the trimmings. But all that is changed and now the hat really hardly counts, save as a support to the trimmings. If the shape of the hat helps modestly out from under the trimmings and adornment and shows itself to be of the fashion, for of whatever it may be, it is as much privileged as I may hope to be these days.

In general, feathers and lace will predominate in the trimmings of spring hats, but they will be followed by a showing of bloom on summer hats that will make it surprising. Big hats all in bloom will be the July rule, according to the present outlook. The English winging hat of last year will renew its popularity, to a considerable degree, too many women rushed into the fashionable late season hat to insure a big stock of the pattern already in the hands of the public. These will be brought out again for a second season's wear, fresh enough to encourage those who like them, to invest for the first time now. The winging hat is especially becoming to women who are wearing their hair parted, and it also suits the little curl in the middle of the forehead. The hat has a tendency to make a girl look a little older, but many of the present fashions do that, there being no comparison in the fact that the wearer gains an air of exactness and tailor-made neatness.

THE LATE MR. WORTH.

Measured by the Standards of Success He Reached a High Place.

Charles Frederick Worth, the famous milliner and dressmaker, is now having passed on to that far country where his services will not be in request, a victim of the disease now raging so virulently in foreign capitals. By his death the gay city of Paris where he has reigned without a rival since Eugenie's time will lose one of its most prominent fascinations for female tourists. Scarcely any woman of wealth or fashion has come here for a foreign gown than a complete success unless she brought back with her gowns, hats or other articles of costume designed and executed in his studio. In some respects he resembled the late Ward McAllister. He was an ardent lover of the art, he was an artist, he was clearly superior to McAllister. The latter knew no better, what men and women should wear, what designs were graceful and what fits were perfect. Worth knew all this, and not only knew it, but he could conceive the designs and then execute them. To this extent he was an artist, and he was supreme in his realm. The woman who thought she had reached the limit of what she did not have her gown made by him. There are other men dressmakers, but they have not reached his heights. It was only necessary to have the seal of Worth upon one's gown in order to secure universal respect and envy. Probably in his long career he turned out many dresses that were no better than those designed and created by others, but this made no difference so long as they were produced by Worth. It was as much heresy to doubt the perfection of a dress made by Worth as it would be to belittle the power of your creator.

WORTH OF PARIS.

a story by Deighton or a picture by Raphael. The signature at once lifted it above criticism.

In his hat Worth had a long and brilliant career. Woman of wealth and fashion, brides and widows, countesses and duchesses, queens and princesses, actresses and prima donnas have thronged his studio and been arrayed in a glory which might be unlike that of the lilies of the field, and yet was most fascinating and powerful in its influence. He had a play of actresses and singers have relied upon his ravishing stage costumes for their success, and how many more who never saw Worth have clandestinely used his name to draw troops to the matinee and make a popular success! No man living, poet, prose writer, artist, singer or actor, has ever had such an influence upon the world of high society as this dead gown-maker. He has been the adoration of those who could afford to patronize him, while those who could not have lived upon hope that some day these ships would come in whereupon they would sail away to Paris and visit that atelier whence issued such and such costumes. Worth's calling was not a very exalted one, for a man, but measured by the standards of success he reached a high place. He was easily at the top of his profession, and as the practice of his profession did call for some artistic knowledge and some sense of the beautiful, his rise and his pinnacle where he stood were not to be lightly regarded or to be depreciated. While it is somewhat of a calamity to lose a man like Worth, who had done so much work in helping to make women, still there is no question his place will be filled, as among his lieutenants in the establishment, and during each year are fitted to fill it. It is one of the compensations of nature that no man is indispensable. Other geniuses will appear in the place of the departed, and the world will be dominated as it is by the man who has been. Meanwhile it will be, in one sense at least, a relief that stage performances of the female sex no longer are the artistic excellence because their gowns were made by Worth.

When he began he employed fifty hands; when he died he employed 700 hands; when he was at the height of his career he had from 6,000 to 7,000 hands were made, from 3,000 to 4,000 cloaks. Every reigning queen except Victoria in the civilized world bought his "creations" one time or another, it is said. The Empress Eugenie was probably his best customer among royals, and Americans paid him the most money.

Materials for Cushions.

Suitable materials for the covers of pillows are legion. Pieces of last summer's worn silk or velvet, or a hearth cushion there is nothing better. A cushion of one of those tea-gown patterns which were embroidered with flowers, signs and colorings. At any Japanese store can be found a variety of printed cotton crepes of old silk or of elaborate new material is chiffon, ribbon cotton, good, woven of threads of different shades of the same color. It is thirty-six inches wide and but seventy-five inches long, 2 1/2 yards making the cover and a ruffle for a large pillow. At several shops they are also made in greens, dark pinks and blues or yellow.

Waterproof Walking Skirt.

It is advisable that one should have one petticoat to be used exclusively for walking, and this may be done for some distance from the bottom with a waterproof cloth. There will then be almost perfect protection for the feet and ankles in wet weather. It is the sewing that makes the clothing about the feet that constitutes most of the discomfort of a rainy day except the position of the waterproof lining does away with this.

TO ONE WHO HAS RETURNED.

Dear heart, I waited many weary years In doubtful doubt, after of lingering And once was there a dream of falling tears.

And once a strife, and once a song to sing But now, with glad gray eyes, again you bring— When nights are long, and the dim sun is bright— Scarce with one smile may peer through winter cold— Sweet unremembered blossoms of the spring.

MRS. BUCK TUPPER.

My profession is that of a civil engineer. After a very unsatisfactory year spent in the employ of certain mushroom railroad companies I resolved to seek a shorter route to fortune by joining the throng that was just then rushing to the silver mines of the southwest.

But alas! for the best place of an unsophisticated tenderfoot! Six months after I found myself one day stranded in a wretched little mining town, without a dollar in my pocket.

How I happened just then to meet and make friends with Col. Dingler it is not part of my purpose to relate. Suffice it to say that when he offered to send me seventy-five miles into the country with a party of men who were to take charge of one of his ranches I accepted without demur.

There were five of us, with all possible divers of science and learning up. Denis O'Flaherty was a brilliant young Irishman, the son of a New York older man. He had broken with his family because of his disposition to flirt with pretty girls rather than to "study for orders," as he had been intended. Si Locking was a typical New Englander, and a very good one, until six months ago he had never been beyond the New Hampshire hills. His very opposite was Ross Harper, a dangerous little fellow who, in spite of his sombrero and brace of pistols, looked very like one of the dummies that used to adorn the front of his clothing store back in Cincinnati, but for all that he was plucky and clear grit to the backbone. Then there was Buck-Tupper.

Just where he hailed from no one ever seemed to know. He seemed to be a part of the wild west himself, and his knowledge of its bold, wicked ways was something marvellous. He had a playful habit of galloping across the country, firing right and left simultaneously, or of dashing up unbidden through shops and saloons on his mustang. Buck was an inveterate gambler, though something of a bungler. It seemed—at least, his earnings were regarded by the hands of the far bank dealer at Waho.

One afternoon, as Buck and I were returning from beyond the canyon, where we had been prospecting, we met a party of cattle, we came upon the trail of a runaway horse. From the broken bits of saddle, cooking utensils and papers that lay about the scene, it was evident that there had been a run away. As reading matter was at a premium just then, I was off in an instant and was getting up the papers, which proved to be of recent date. So absorbed did I become in their contents that it was some minutes before I noticed that Buck also had dismounted, and was examining with great interest something that he had picked up from the roadside.

It proved to be the photograph of a woman, and a face that the slightly-wild hair brushed simply but from the low, broad forehead. The eyes, that you would have sworn were a clear gray, seemed to look straight into your own sweet, trustful expression. Several times during the ride home Buck took the picture from his blouse, regarding it with an air of placid content.

When I came into the house after putting away the horses, I found him busily engaged in fastening the picture to the wall above the chimney place.

"It ain't no place for such," he said, nodding his head at the picture, and glancing apologetically about the room, "but Buck Tupper's proud to give you the best he's got."

Looking upon the matter as a great joke, when the others came in I led them to the picture, and then, with much ceremony to Buck Tupper. The name seemed to tickle Buck's fancy, and he repeated it over and over to himself with a pleased chuckle.

From that time "Mrs. Buck Tupper" became a household word with us; but it was not until some weeks after this that we learned how much of a reality she had become to the eccentric fellow. One day, when one of his chums from Waho was in the house, a doubtful story, Buck had interrupted:

"Gimpsey, I don't 'low that's just the talk a right like woman likes to listen to," he said, glancing sidlingly at the face on the wall. Gimpsey stopped, disconcerted and astonished. He did not finish the story. I think he went away believing that Buck was his toughest. Indeed, I am not sure but the rest of us shared the opinion.

It was evident that, for some reason, a radical change had taken place in his life. He went no more on his boisterous crusades, and on Sundays when he was off duty, I had found him several times trying to spell out the words in the little Bible I had carried with me in my wanderings.

For several weeks flaming bills had been posted about announcing that there was to be a great time at Waho on Christmas eve. However, when I mentioned it to Tupper he shook his head slowly.

"Now, I did think some about it, but Mrs. Buck Tupper—smiling up at the top of her head—said 'I loved if there was here she'd rat me out.'"

Seeing that I was disposed to listen, he went on: "I never had no bringing up, but I sort of felt that I ought to be as though that picture was a token."

"Some day you'll find that woman, her name was Tupper. Of course I never thought of such a thing, but I say, could be fitted into such a thing as to be decent at all, any way."

For more than a month we had been annoyed by cattle thieves, but in spite of the fact that we were re-enforced by a party of men, they continued to come. One bright moonlight night, however, we came down upon a party of them. Our men at once opened fire. As they showed their faces, they were numbered then, their leader, with a signal to his men, put spurs to his horse, and down the gorge, with several of our party in pursuit.

They had gone but a short distance when they took their horses off the one of the outlaws fell dead. Larkin and I hurried forward to prevent the horse from being lost. As we lifted the saddle by which he had been plucked to the ground, the long coat and broad southern fell back, disclosing the fact that our captive was a woman.

At this moment one of the men came galloping back with news that the pursuer had been shot. This put an end to the pursuit, and we hurried back to the ranch with the wounded man. O'Flaherty and I took charge of him, while Harper was left in the outer room to guard the prisoner. From the first it was evident that Buck's wound was fatal.

"I reckon I'm going, shore," he said feebly. "I never was half decent; I never knowed how to live, Jim," with a pitiful, pleading look, "if you see Mrs. Buck Tupper, I wish you'd tell her—that I tried."

I thought that the experience of these months had effectually hardened me, but no this was too much, and the pain of wishing to relieve Harper I left the room.

It was not until I was alone with the woman that I looked at her. Then I was transfixed with astonishment. As she sat there, the lamplight falling on her bold, rigid face, it needed no second glance to convince me that she was the original of Buck's picture. This, then, was the aged of purity at whose shrine the poor fellow had been worshipping!

My first thought was he must never know. And yet I reflected how much it would mean to him but to see her face. Going over to where she sat, I hurriedly told her the whole story.

"And you want me to go to him?" Her face was cold and unfeeling, but there was a singular sweetness in her voice.

"Yes, only that he thinks you are—"

"I understand," with a faint smile. After explaining matters to O'Flaherty, I led her to the bedside of the dying man, and left them alone together.

When I returned some minutes later, she sat beside him, and he was holding her hand. A change that I could not describe had come over her face. There was a subdued light that only tears can give to a woman's face.

"You'll make a little pain for me," he was saying feebly.

"Yes, little one," very tenderly. "I know you do feel broken up, but I never just knowed how, an' the angels'd hear such as you."

The woman turned a hunted look upon the rest of us, then slipping from her chair dropped upon her knees.

"Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep, If I should be laid in my grave, I pray the Lord my soul to take."

Buck repeated the last words over after her.

"I pray the Lord my soul to take."

"Yes, I 'low He will," and he was gone.

Of course we could not think now of our original errand, so, after a hurried consultation, we put her on Buck's pony, and Harper and I rode out to the trail with her, and the last we saw of Mrs. Buck Tupper was as she rode down the gorge in the gray morning mist.

The following summer I returned to the west, and as the years slipped away my western experience became gradually an uncertain memory.

One evening late in December, as I was walking up Duane street, my attention was arrested by the sight of a woman that came from the Salvation Army barracks across the street.

I have a friend in Jesus; He's all the world to me; He's the fairest of ten thousand to my soul!

I crossed over and stood for a moment in the crowd that surged about the door. The singing had ceased, and a woman was speaking. I could not see her face, but her voice was a singularly musical falsetto.

"Though your sins be as scarlet—do you hear that?" she was saying. "Scarlet—thine own blood—and the Bible says that no murderer can enter the kingdom. But he can wash the murder out of your heart, bleed His name. He says: 'I will make them white as snow.'"

Seized with a sudden curiosity, I mounted one of the benches to get a glimpse of the speaker's face. A pale face, with clear, gray eyes and wavy brown hair—where had I seen it before?

What was the vague memory that for a moment seemed to me to tantalize me? I had gone back through the years, and the same face—only younger and fuller—was looking at me from the smoked wall with a pleased chuckle.

"Mrs. Buck Tupper!" involuntarily the words came to my lips. At this moment the woman's eyes met my own. A confused look overspread her face, and she faltered in her speech. Could it be that she knew me? No, but she had seen the look of recognition in my face, and recognized in a woman's face a past must always be disturbing. I reflected, as I stepped down and joined the crowd outside.

"Who is she?" I questioned of a strapping fellow with a flaming badge upon his breast.

"That's Capt. Mildred," speaking enthusiastically. "The devil takes that woman, I tell you! Why, she'd go through anything to get a poor wretch out of his clothes. Why, she's a—"

But I did not wait to hear the rest. Here, I mused, was a fit sequel to poor Buck's story; and as I walked away, the song floated out again, clear and triumphant:

And sweeping up to glory, To see His blessed face, Where rivers of delight forever roll; He's the lily of the valley— He's the bright and morning star; He's the fairest of ten thousand to my soul!

The Cheerful Idiot.

"Are you aware," said the scientific boarder, "that I have been applied to a man he will die within a few hours?"

"I wasn't aware," said the cheerful idiot, "but I'll be damned, though, that a man may survive a coat of whitewash till the next election."—Indianapolis Journal.

A Fish Story.

"Grant joke on Jarley?" "What was that?" "Well, when he was fishing and didn't catch anything, 'Jarley had a down loss to be sent to his house, so that his wife would think he caught 'em. When the baskets were opened they turned out to be bottled Bass."

Mr. Faure's Start.

It is said that M. Faure owes his start in political life to the elder Coquelin, who introduced him to Gambetta one night at the theatre. Gambetta became interested in his new acquaintance and hoped to be able to obtain his first social position.

ADVICE TO OWNERS OF HORSES.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR SCRATCHES, GREASE, HEEL, ETC.
A man you all know, and a man of experience gives the following:—
"I have used Dr. COLEMAN'S PASTE for scratches and grease heel on horses, 'in my stables,' and from principle alone must say it is the only remedy I have ever found that will cure. I have tried everything I could get, but without success. Dr. COLEMAN'S PASTE, being a new preparation and highly recommended, I determined to try it. The one 25 cent box cured the worst case of grease heel ever in my stable inside three days. I consider it just what all liveries require. Try it once."

(Signed) C. ANDERSON, Anderson's Livery and Bus Line, Napanee. Upon receipt of price, "25 cents," we will mail 1 box Coleman's Paste, post paid, to any address, under a positive guarantee.

DEATH OF MRS. A. G. REID.

Mrs. Andrew G. Reid Gananoque, died on Saturday, 20th inst. of inflammation, after an illness of five days. Deceased whose maiden name was Mary Ann Crook, was the youngest daughter of Mr. James Crook, of Deseronto, was born on April 18th, 1808, and was therefore twenty-seven years of age, and had been married only three years and seven months. The death of one so young and much beloved on the sudden, caused a great sorrow.

Expressions of sympathy in Gananoque was evidenced by the great number of floral decorations sent in by kind friends and neighbors. Deceased was a member of the Methodist Church and on Sunday evening Rev. F. C. Reynolds conducted an appropriate service at the house in which he resided.

The funeral took place on Monday, the casket being taken to the railway station and thence conveyed to Deseronto by the accommodation train leaving Gananoque at 7:40.

On the arrival of the large number of friends were assembled at the railway station. The funeral procession proceeded to the Deseronto cemetery where the remains of the deceased, with those of her infant child born during her illness, were interred, religious services being conducted by Rev. R. Taylor. The bereaved husband and friends have general sympathy in their great affliction. The deceased lady was a member of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends and carried an insurance in that order of $500.

THE CANADA LIFE.

In another column will be found the Forty-Eighth Annual Report of the Canada Life Assurance Company submitted at the annual meeting and which will be read with great interest by its numerous policy holders in Deseronto and the adjoining district.

The facts and figures presented indicate the sound management which has always characterized this great company while they exhibit a wonderful progress in every department of the operations of this great Canadian corporation which must be very gratifying to all interested in the growth of the financial institutions of the Dominion.

The new business of 1894 was the largest ever done in the year. The aggregate of death claims was considerably less than in 1893 and 1892. The present report is one of exceptional interest and it comes at the termination of a quinquennial period, and deals with the surplus of three years.

Of the surplus the sum of $2,106,000—83 per cent of the whole sum available for distribution—will be divided among the policy holders. This announcement will be received with great satisfaction, since it means $20 per $1000 per annum addition to ordinary policies and the equivalent of $25.50 per $1000 per annum.

This portion for distribution would have been $3,011,000 on a 3 1/2 per cent basis, but the company, having a prudent regard for the future, reduced the basis of calculating earnings to 4 per cent, necessitating the laying aside of $842,000 additional reserve. The company's reserve is now $13,075,777.

The report also gives proof of the very favorable mortality in the case of this company, giving little over a careful selection of lives. The Company must be congratulated on the favorable showing of this excellent report.

WALKER BROS' COLOSSAL SHOW.

The Messrs Walker Bros. open the present season by giving their first performance in Deseronto, Saturday evening, May 4th.

No expense has been spared in order to place before the public the most complete rendition of that well known story of Slavery told by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe entitled Uncle Tom's Cabin which although familiar to the public will contain new and interesting facts.

The play will start at the beginning of the act and the second and third acts are often done by travelling troupes.

The Cotton picking scene alone will be more than worth the price of admission. New and interesting scenery fresh from the brush of the well known scenic painter, Mr. A. C. Grant, will be used in all acts.

A free street parade will be made of the principal streets on the day of the show which will well repay all to see. The wages alone are pronounced by cities to be the finest ever under a Wagner show.

The performance opens at 8 o'clock p.m. in their mammoth pavilion which will be pitched on the lot east of the O'Connor House.

Those wishing to reserve seats can do so without extra cost by calling at T. J. Taylor's Restaurant and checking them off.

The Messrs Walker have always been willing to do at all the gatherings of the different societies in town free of charge, and with great inconvenience to themselves, and the Assurance trusts that in their first appearance to the public a crowded house will be secured in this manner.

The best talent money could procure has been secured for this the best Uncle Tom's Cabin Show on earth.

DESERONTO COUNCIL, ROYAL TEMPLARS.

Deseronto Council of Royal Templars of Temperance has had a winter of great prosperity, all the branches of its work being in a satisfactory condition. There are now about 170 members on the roll all of them in good standing with dues paid up, etc. The insurance department is flourishing, the Order enjoying an enviable reputation for the sound methods by which this department of its work is conducted.

The meeting of the Council held on the evening of the 18th inst. was a most pleasant character. There was a large attendance of members and the proceedings were of a very interesting character.

At the beginning of the quarter prizes were offered to three members who should bring in the largest number of new members. Selected Council Sister Mrs. Saxmuth distinguished herself by bringing in three new members.

The first prize, a double gold pin exemplifying the Royal, Select, Esplanade and the Temperance. The second prize, a double gold pin, was presented to Bro. J. R. Booth who had brought in twenty-two new members.

Gold pins were also presented to Sisters Mrs. S. W. Perry and Mrs. N. W. Perry, who had enlisted seven and six members respectively. The prizes were given by Bro. E. C. Davey, J. M. Smith and Russell.

At the beginning of the quarter two captains, Bros. I. Vandewater and Harry Morden, whose sides to become responsible for the programmes, the side failing to get up the best program to treat the Council to a supper. Capt. Morden's team was successful and accordingly Capt. Vandewater was in for the treat, which he provided and which was much appreciated. The members greatly enjoyed the evening's amusement.

A DREADFUL DISEASE CURED.

Messrs. Douglas Bro. & Co.: Gentlemen,—I have much pleasure in offering you testimonial on the cure of Barbers Itch. For over three weeks my face was nothing but a mass of sores, and it was still getting worse. It got so bad that I was ashamed to go out on the street. I went to a very prominent doctor of this town and he told me it would take a few months before I could get rid of it. On a Sunday a neighbor came in to see me with about half an ounce of Ointment of the Egyptian Liniment and requested me to try it. I thought I would give it a trial: I put it on my face that same day, and inside of three days my face was as smooth as ever it was. I might also say that I only bathed my face once and that I consider I have a permanent cure. I cannot recommend your Liniment too highly for the value it has been to me. This I declare to be true and correct.

I remain yours, C. A. MURDOCH, Painter.

Tanworth, 18th May, 1893.
